SPEAKER STICKS TO SOX

HUERTA OUTLAWS HIS FOES

MEXICO CITY, March 6.—A government warrant charging General Francisco Villa with murder and General Venustiano Carranza with being an accessory, was drawn up by the Minister of Justice today and immediately signed by President Huerta.

The warrant holds both the Constitutionalist leaders responsible for the death of William S. Benton, the wealthy British rancher executed at Juarez.

The signing of the warrant put both men in the position of being fugitives from justice and either can be shot down by government soldiers or any government officer upon refusal to surrender.

"But Carranza and Villa are in the Huerta after he had the warrant issued. "The Mexican government intends to protect foreigners. Benton's execution was a cold-blooded murder and his slayers are going to be punished."

General Huerta, it is said, is still planning to take the field against the rebels and conciliate the United States by selecting a successor acceptable to President Wilson.

The first actual step in this direction, according to those close to Huerta, was the appointment of Senor Jose de Portillo y Rojas as foreign minister, in place of Querido Moheno. Rojas has not been of the Huerta party and he is friendly to the United States. It is said Huerta intends to put Rojas in the provisional President's chair if the United States will consent.

Two hundred rebels were killed in the defeat of General Toribio Ortega's rear guard in a battle with Federals between Conejos and Tecalon, according to dispatches received here today. The rebels, numbering more than 3,000, had been moving toward Torreon without interruption until General Pena, with a Federal army of 700 men, engaged them.

CARRANZA PROMISES BRYAN RIGID PROBE OF BAUCH MYSTERY

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Secretary Bryan received today a note from General Carranza, signed by Senor Fabela, Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the Cabinet of the Constitutionalists, assuring the American government that the mysteries surrounding the disappearance of Gustav Bauch would be promptly investigated.

The joint commission of American and British representatives, it became known today, will get no further instructions until after the Mexican board of inquiry reports its findings. The appointment of Luis Cabrera as special adviser of the Mexican commission, was favorably received by officials here, who have a high regard for Cabrera's knowledge of diplomacy and his sense of the value of an impartial investigation.

Benedict Party Off for Caribbean Cruise

NEW YORK, March 6.—E. C. Benedict, former commodore of the New York Yacht Club, has sailed with a party of friends for a five weeks' cruise in the Caribbean on his schooner-rigged steam yacht Oneida. They will go first to Bermuda, thence to the Windward Islands, sailing at Martinique, and then to Jamaica, winding up the trip at Key West.

MR. HEARST'S COMMENT ON MR. WILSON'S MESSAGE

If Congress yields, "it will be time for genuine Americans to quit a party which no longer considers its own precedent, its platform pledges or the public welfare."

Mr. Wilson, following the custom well established in England and her dependencies, has again delivered a speech from the throne to Parliament.

It is not unusual for the Governor-General or other head of an English colonial government to urge the colonial Parliament to do nothing which would offend the mother country, so Mr. Wilson follows accepted usage in this respect.

It is perhaps without precedent, however, that a representative of any British possession, no matter how dependent, should ask his people to sacrifice their own undeniable rights and their own unquestionable interests to propitiate the British government and to save his personal face.

History does not relate any instance, when these States were actually British crown colonies, that a governor appointed by the king had this much of shamefully mingled humility and hardihood.

Nevertheless, Mr. Wilson, President of these formerly free and one-time independent United States, has had this much impudence and this little patriotism.

If Congress retains any spark of self-respect or American independence it will tell Mr. Wilson that his face is not worth saving—at least not at the sacrifice of the public interest and the national honor.

If Congress has not enough patriotism to adopt such an independent attitude, it is time for all honest Democrats and genuine Americans to save their own self-respect by quitting a perjured party which no longer considers its own precedent, its platform pledges or the public welfare.

"WILSON FAILS TO WIN TOLL SUPPORT"

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, March 6. — The President's message to Congress favoring surrender to England on the Panama Canal has solidified the opposition. His support is confined to administration Senators and a few reactionary Republicans. I do not believe the message has converted a single man to the administration view.

The dramatic scene in the House when President Wilson made his personal plea to tax American domestic ships using the canal, formally opens the first battle to a finish between two great Democratic leaders, neither of whom has ever lost a battle.

The President's first year of office has been a triumphal march through the tariff and the currency and every domestic policy.

Oscar Underwood's two years of consummate leadership under more difficult conditions have led through

'Curley Treated Me Rotten,' Says Former Fire Chief Mullen

Former Chief John A. Mullen of the Boston Fire Department said at his home in South Boston today that Mayor Curley had treated him "rotten."

Chief Mullen resigned last night, following Mayor Curley's nomination of Deputy Chief Grady to be Fire Commissioner. Chief Grady took charge of the department today as acting chief. The Mayor's schedule for reduced city salaries also slated Mullen for a cut of $500 a year in his pay of $4,500. Mullen quit the department.

Today he said:

"Did the Mayor treat me right? No, he treated me rotten. A man who has served the city as faithfully as I have as head of the fire department for so long a time ought to have been treated a great deal better.

"I was chief of the department and had been for quite a number of years, and I gave the best that was in me to the city.

"That I should have been treated as I was, shows that a man like Mr. Curley has no appreciation of the work of a man who conscientiously discharges his duties.

"The less I say about the matter the better. Let the people judge.

"I am sorry to leave the fire department, but I'm glad, for my family's sake, that I'll be home.

"I thank God that He spared my life, which has been imperilled many times."

Stephen A. Pope Dies of Gas Poison

Stephen A. Pope, of the famous firm of Pope & Carlisle, doormakers, died early today at his home in Dorchester of gas-poisoning, and the police believe it is a case of suicide. His daughter found him at 6 a. m., fully clad, and lying on the bed unconscious. A tube, never used by the family, was attached to the gas fixture beside him. A pulmotor was secured, but after two hours hard work, Mr. Pope died in spite of all efforts.

51 Indictments by Suffolk Grand Jury

Thirteen secret indictments were included in a batch of 51 true bills returned by the Federal grand jury for March, which reported today. Four "no" bills were returned.

Charles F. Foster, paying teller at the Bristol County National Bank in Taunton, is indicted as an embezzler of $2,500 of bank funds.

Despondent Woman Jumps Three Stories

WORCESTER, March 6. — Mrs. Margaret MacCartney, forty, wife of Edward MacCartney of No. 187 Holden street, today became despondent in the absence of her husband at work, jumped from the third-story window of her home to the street. She was picked up unconscious and rushed to the City Hospital, where she will die.

Family in Fire Peril at Revere

John Macelone and wife and their six children had a narrow escape early today from suffocation when their house on Avilon park, Revere, was burned, causing a loss of $35,000.

MYSTERY OF MRS. HAYDEN

Mrs. Annie E. Hayden, one of the best loved and most respected women in the fine old Boston society, has disappeared; and the tragic mystery of her absence has completely prostrated her father and brothers.

The most rigorous measures have failed to reveal a trace of her. She disappeared Wednesday. The Summer home at Cliftondale has been searched, as well as every nearby park and reservation. A patrol has been established on the beach at Cliftondale on the dreadful chance that she may have rowed to sea and killed herself.

LAST TO SEE HER.

"I was the last to see her. She came in my office Wednesday noon—disconsolate. Usually I have been able to cheer her up, but when she left that day she was still morose. At 6 that night they telephoned she had not come home."

His voice broke as he continued: "It must be aphasia. Her mind must be a blank. Since her husband died, and since mother died, she has grieved continually.

"She was God's purest and noblest woman—never a bad thought or a bad deed in all her life. Since mother died, she was a mother to me—a mother, through and through. Brother and sister in our case meant 'sweetheart'—nothing less. We were devoted as sweethearts.

BROTHER NEARLY WILD.

"I have a fair amount of nerve. But unless something comes up my nerve will be all gone very shortly. I'm nearly wild. She was such a beautiful sister to me—so devotedly attentive to my father. Oh, what can we ever do without her—what can we do?" His head dropped upon his desk, and for a minute, in the extremity of his grief, he gave himself utterly to sobs.

Mrs. Hayden's father, Erastus Badger, is broken with grief. He is an old man, and his son declared there was fear for his very life if the suspense as to his daughter's fate continues.

In the two days since Mrs. Hayden disappeared a thorough search has been made for her. Dr. George McGrath and her brother, Dr. George S. C. Badger, of the Harvard Medical School, have visited the hospitals and morgues. The Boston police and the Metropolitan officers have searched parks and woods in Cliftondale, State and local police have helped in searching the big Badger estate for trace of her.

HAD A LITTLE MONEY.

Mrs. Hayden had a little money when she disappeared. She had drawn $50 on February 27. She lived with her father at No. 836 Beacon street.

Mrs. Hayden is fifty-eight years old. She is slight of stature—about five feet two inches tall, and weighs about 125 pounds.

When she disappeared she wore a black and gray mixed suit. Her hat was purple and about her throat was a black lynx stole.

What money she had she carried in a silver mesh bag. Her only distinctive jewelry was her wedding ring, inscribed "N F P H to A C B."

Plan "Nobel" Prizes for Women's Work

CHICAGO, March 6.—A move has been inaugurated by the Chicago Woman's Association of Commerce, so that recognition shall be accorded the notable achievements of women by the bestowal of a series of prizes of from $10,000 to $40,000 similar to the Nobel prizes.

ACCUSE GIRL CHILD AS SLAYER

Pitifully frail and pallid, fifteen-year-old Mary Theresa Reynaud, the Revere schoolgirl who is accused of slaying her baby, faced Judge Bosson in the Chelsea court today and heard medical experts tell how her baby died.

The little girl, who wears short dresses and weighs but sixty pounds, sat through the ordeal with absolutely no show of emotion. She seemed dazed, as if she little realized the seriousness of the court drama before here.

It was expected she might take the stand this afternoon to give her own story of how her baby—a girl—died. The child's mother sat but a few feet away from the doctors as they testified. She had a red sweater, a sailor suit of checked linen, a collar to match and a red Tam O'Shanter.

Associate Medical Examiner Joseph O'Shea of Essex County was the first witness. He said he had performed an autopsy on the baby at the Lynn Hospital on February 13.

"I found the baby was well nourished and a normal infant. The baby was born on February 12."

Dr. O'Shea was cross-examined by Attorney Melvil Breath, counsel for the girl. The doctor said the wounds might have been caused by "handling by a person of inexperience."

Dr. John Walsh of Revere testified he had been summoned to the Reynaud home on Hill street place in that town, and that he found Mary and her baby in bed.

"I found Mrs. Carl D. Robertson, a neighbor, in the room with the girl. Mrs. Robertson told me she had cared for the baby. I think it wonderful that so young a girl could have passed through such an ordeal alone."

Mrs. Robertson's husband, an employe of the Metropolitan Park Commission at Revere, had been on trial before the case of Mary Reynaud was called. He was accused of a statutory offence. Judge Bosson reserved decision.

The girl was a witness against Robertson.

Canal Tolls Repeal Bill Reported, 14 to 3

WASHINGTON, March 6.—By a vote of 14 to 3 the House interstate commerce committee today decided to report favorably the bill repealing the clause of the Panama Canal act, which grants free tolls to American coastwise shipping.

Those in favor of the repeal were Representatives Adamson of Georgia, Sims of Tennessee, Covington of Maryland, Talcott of New York, Stephens of Nebraska, Stevens of New Hampshire, Barkley of Kentucky, Rayburn of Texas, Montague of Virginia, and Decker of Missouri, Democrats; and Stevens of Minnesota, Esch of Wisconsin, Hamilton of Michigan, and Willis of Ohio, Republicans.

Those voting against the repeal were Doremus of Michigan, and O'Shaughnessy of Rhode Island, Democrats, and Knowland of California, Republican.

"Watchful Waiting" by the Suffragists

WASHINGTON, March 6—A "watchful waiting" policy has been adopted by the suffragists toward the Senate during the debate on the Chamberlain resolution for a constitutional amendment for woman suffrage. They are taking their seats daily in the Senate gallery with note book ready and are watching the various members and waiting for their expressions of sentiment toward the measure.

FEDS FAIL TO GET TRIS ON BIG BID

NEW YORK, March 6.—By stealing a march of two hours on the agents of the Federal League who swarmed about the Cunard dock here, President Joseph J. Lannin of the Boston Red Sox succeeded today in reaching Tris Speaker, the home-coming Sox star, first and induced Speaker to agree to play for Boston again this year.

The price agreed upon was not made public. But Speaker will get a salary in five figures, probably from $12,000 to $15,000. Speaker's salary last year was $9,000.

Lannin and other organized baseball magnates went down the bay in a revenue cutter to meet the Lusitania, on which was the party of world-girdling Giants and White Sox homeward bound. Representatives of the Federal League caught without passes for the cutter, and were prevented from going aboard. They went to the Cunard pier at the foot of West Fourteenth street to meet the liner.

AFTER BIG LEAGUE STARS.

Besides Speaker, they were after Sam Crawford of Detroit and a half dozen other unsigned big league baseball stars. They had sent messages by wireless urging the players not to sign any contracts until the Federal agents could offer them terms.

The Federals were prepared to give fabulous sums for some of the play-

Good Agents Are Available at All Times

But you can't find them by mixing with the crowds in the street or shouting from the housetops. Both methods passed out of use many years ago.

The modern way is to turn the searchlight of a Boston American "Want Ad" on the field of unemployed agents.

From the names that respond, select those who appear best adapted for the work in hand—those who are experienced in selling goods by personal solicitation.

The field will soon build up an organization that will be profitable to you.

The Boston American has long been recognized as a most effective medium through which to reach agents.

If you have an article to place on the market fix up an ad at once. State what your proposition is and what the selling prospects are. Then leave it with any of the American's "Want Ad" stations, the branch office at 264 Washington street, Main office at 80 Summer street, or

2 WOMEN IN PISTOL TRAGEDY

WORCESTER, March 6.—Mrs. Lorenzo J. Powers, fifty-nine years old, wife of a wealthy and prominent manufacturer, today shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. Agnes Sissons, housekeeper in the Powers home. Mrs. Powers became jealous of Mrs. Sissons.

Mrs. Sissons is fifty-nine years old and came from Mystic, Ct., last May to assume charge of the Powers household.

Twice before today Mrs. Sissons had wrested a revolver from the hands of her mistress when, obsessed with fits of jealousy, Mrs. Powers threatened to shoot her.

This forenoon Mrs. Sissons was washing dishes at the sink when Mrs. Powers stole downstairs in her bathrobe and slippers and without warning fired three shots into Mrs. Sissons' back.

When the police arrived Mrs. Powers was standing over Mrs. Sissons' prostrate form, saying: "You tried to kill me and I will kill you."

Mrs. Sissons was removed to the hospital in the police ambulance, where it was found that two bullets had pierced her lungs. She is dying.

Mrs. Powers was taken to the psycopathic ward of the hospital, where she is under observation as to her sanity. She collapsed after the shooting.

Mrs. Powers said she brought the revolver with her from California, and that after the shooting, she dropped it down the chimney to the cellar. The police recovered it, and found three cartridges discharged.

Mr. Powers told Inspector Goold that his wife had repeatedly threatened to shoot him, but that he believed she would do no further harm. The neighbors say Powers was always deeply attentive to his wife and considerate of her comfort. She claimed to be an invalid, but the police say she is strong and well.

She recently made a complaint to the police that her husband was not supporting her properly. It was thought to be only another evidence of her unbalanced mental condition, and no attention was paid to it.

Power is the largest manufacturer of artificial limbs in New England. He was absent from home at the time of the shooting.

Brett Quits Fight In Twelfth District

Carleton L. Brett has withdrawn from the Congressional race in the Twelfth District. In a letter today he said: "In view of the tremendous amount of money that is evidently going to be spent, I cannot see how a fair choice of the people can be made. I feel that the present system of first securing signatures for nomination in the primaries, then holding practically two elections cannot possibly result in the people's choice being made."

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause — Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are now doing. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way; when the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away go indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They act with wonderful results, causing no pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio.

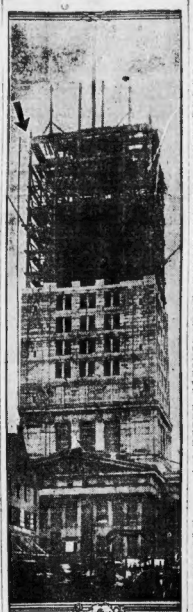
BOSTON'S Tower of Pisa, the new custom's house tower that is eight inches out of plumb at 300 feet. When completed it will be 505 feet high.



SAY CUSTOM HOUSE TOWER IS LEANING

Boston's new 505-foot customhouse tower, which has already reached about 300 feet, has "leaned" eight inches toward the north, according to a report today. The rumor caused a sensation and stirred official circles in Boston generally. It set everybody in architectural, federal, building and business lines to asking: "Is Boston going to have a leaning tower of Pisa?"

In Boston no official statement was forthcoming. Inquirers were referred to Washington and there the officials were mum. And so the rumor came back to Boston and kept on growing —but still without any verification officially.

However, it was stated that even if the tower did lean eight inches, this would not affect the structure materially. The construction will be continued as usual until the 505-foot tower is completed "lean or no lean," it was declared.

The tower is now more than half finished and is to be a notable monument for Boston's waterfront. Its height will be its most impressive feature, for its apex will reach higher than anything built by man in all New England. Beside it Bunker Hill monument will look small, the Ames Building will look puny and the Tremont Building will be dwarfed, while Boston's 125-foot regulation buildings will look like an army of pigmy structures.

Bunker Hill monument is 221 feet high. The Ames Building is about 144 feet high and the Tremont Building is 126 feet high. Boston's other buildings come within the 125-foot provision by law.

Formal Opening of Brigham's Hotel

The formal opening of the Brigham's Hotel, No. 642-644 Washington street, about a minute's walk from the Essex street tunnel station, took place yesterday afternoon. The occasion was marked with a dinner that was given by D. M. Healey, under whose personal management and ownership that Brigham's Hotel will be run in the future, to his friends and business associates at the hotel yesterday afternoon.

The Brigham's Hotel was recently purchased by Mr. D. M. Healey, who has been in the hotel business for many years. He spared no expense in remodelling the hotel and it has now an entirely new appearance.

WALSH GIVES TAX VIEWS TO COMMITTEE

Having established the precedent, Governor Walsh again today appeared in person before a committee of the Legislature. This time it was the Committee on Taxation, before which the Governor came to emphasize therecommendations contained in his message.

The Governor attacked the standpat proposition, that unless the recommendations contained in a Governor's inaugural message were subsequently supported by the general public at committee hearings there was no public demand for them.

The Governor reminded the committee that his own measures were submitted on the stump last Fall, and that he therefore has voiced the desires of thousands of citizens who are "too busy earning a living" to be crowding into State House committee rooms. The Governor said he favored the following reforms:

Deeds of real estate to show the "true consideration" for the transfer of property, instead of the usual "$1.00."

Tax Commissioner empowered to set aside an assessment and make a new one.

Property owners compelled to file returns showing the amount and value of their taxable property.

When taxable property is discovered, which has been escaping taxation, "steps be taken to assess it for a period of five years prior to the discovery."

PHONE CLERK UNCONSCIOUS; OFFICE ROBBED

FITCHBURG, March 6.—Fred G. Sargent, chief clerk and cashier of the plant department of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company here, was found unconscious in his office here early today. The office was wrecked, drawers forced open, the safe rifled and evidences of a terrific struggle.

Sargent was rushed to the Burbank Hospital, where he was still unconscious at noon. All efforts to revive him had failed; and the most mysterious feature of the case was that no wound or sign of violence could be found on his body. The police believe a sandbag was used.

The robbers or Sargent's assailants secured about $50 in cash, and it is possible some valuable papers were also taken.

Sargent came home late last night from Boston, and it is supposed he was followed from the train to his office.

URGE RANTOUL TO SUE RUMRILL FOR ALIENATION

Friends of Edward L. Rantoul urged him today to follow up his victory in the Middlesex Divorce Court—where he successfully contested his wife's action for divorce—by bringing suit against his former friend and chummate, "Chippie" Rumrill, for alienating the affections of Mrs. Rantoul.

Rumrill for heavy damages, and this was the gist of the suggestions made to Rantoul.

Meanwhile Mrs. Lois Burnett Rantoul, gifted granddaughter of the poet, James Russell Lowell, is prepared to fight to the last to keep her two children. At her present home, No. 101 Forest Hills street, Jamaica Plains, she said today:

"The more I have to do with courts the less I know of them. But this I know, I will fight through every court to keep my children."

An attorney who has been prominent in Rantoul affairs says:

"Since the dismissal of Mrs. Rantoul's libel by Judge Hardy all pending interlocutory arrangements relative to the custody of the children, to alimony and so forth automatically expire. The legal aspect of the case is as though no law suit had taken place. If Mrs. Rantoul wants the custody of her children she must bring a new action for that purpose.

"On the other hand, Mr. Rantoul is at perfect liberty to bring suit against Rumrill for alienation of the affections of Mrs. Rantoul, if he so chooses."

The possibility of a suit against Rumrill was put before Mr. Rantoul before the court proceedings, on the witness stand at his last hearing Mr. Rantoul testified that when he went to Charles F. Choate with his troubles and asked him what he could do, Mr. Choate made, among other suggestions, this one:

"You could sue Rumrill for alienation of Mrs. Rantoul's affections." Rantoul added on the stand that although Choate advised him to sue Rumrill, he (Rantoul) did not bring that suit.

Now that Rantoul has won a legal victory in his wife's defeat and in view of the testimony that has come out in the last trial, Mr. Rantoul's friends are telling him that he should invoke the law to punish Rumrill.

Mrs. Bryan Serves Wisdom With Tea

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Mrs. William Jennings Bryant, who has grown one of the most indefatigable of the administration hostesses, provides her guests with themes for thought by having her tea cloths studded with mottoes.

As the guests sip their tea or grape-juice they see worked out in pretty designs such rules of living and common counsel as "Speak not evil of the absent" and "Rest ye and thankful be."

Rockefeller's First Sweetheart Dying

ST. LOUIS, March 6.—Mrs. Emma Saunders Cummings, John D. Rockefeller's first sweetheart, who introduced him to Cleveland church society when he was a wagon driver for his father, is reported dying at her home here. She is seventy-two years old and lives with her husband, George W. Cummings, and a daughter.

President Hadley in 'Criminal Class'

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 6.—President Hadley, of Yale, arrived late at a meeting of the Religious Instruction Convention on the campus, said with a smile:

"I expected to be here earlier, but about a year ago I joined the criminal classes and became a member of the New Haven board of directors of the New Haven Railroad."

The Senior Holy Name Society of St. Rose's Church, Chelsea, holds a special meeting Sunday evening, to reorganize the society. An attempt is on foot to increase the membership to 1,000.

MRS. JOHN E. ELWELL of Medford, whose husband has secured a divorce and who is defended by the wife of the man named in the divorce suit.

Mrs. Elizabeth Christie, wife of the doctor accused by John E. Elwell of Medford in his suit for divorce, defends Mrs. Elwell, despite the fact that Judge Hardy saw fit to grant Elwell his divorce and the custody of five-year-old Almot Elwell. The sole provision in Mrs. Elwell's favor was that she should be allowed to visit the boy on Sundays.

Mrs. Christie said of Mrs. Elwell:

"Even if she has done wrong once, she doesn't necessarily have to be bad. I don't consider that she is a bad woman.

"I wanted to help her, and offered to take her into my home after Mr. Elwell left her. I wouldn't think of throwing her down for that, even if Dr. Christie is my husband.

"I thought I could trust Dr. Christie to the end of the earth. Yet I love Mrs. Elwell just the same."

A HAPPY CHILD IN A FEW HOURS

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a healthful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

SCHOOL BOARD SAYS RIPLEYS EARN SALARIES

At the school committee offices today, it was declared—in answer to Representative Lewis R. Sullivan's charge that the "Ripley Family" draws thousands of dollars a year in school salaries: "The Ripley's are getting good salaries—because they're bright people. They earn every cent they get."

The family payroll is as follows:

Frederick H. Ripley—maximum of $3472.

Grace Ripley (daughter)—maximum of $1256.

Mrs. F. H. Ripley (wife)—$5496.

Mr. Ripley is master of the Prince School. His daughter is an assistant instructor in the department of Manual Arts at the Dorchester High School. Mrs. Ripley does executive work at the Normal and is the highest paid member of the family.

It was also denied, as charged by Sullivan, that Joseph Lee of the school committee had contributed $1,000 to help elect "his cousin, Miss Frances Curtis," to the school committee. Miss Curtis is not his cousin, it was stated, and Mr. Lee's contribution was one he has made every year for nine years—$500 or $1,000 each year.

Representative Sullivan's charges were made before the legislative Committee on Education. He said:

"The Ripley family gets thousands of dollars a year in school salaries, father, mother and daughter. At the last graduation, my daughter had to pay 25 cents for a copy of 'The Palms, Revised by Frederick Ripley,' that could have been purchased in any music store for 17 cents. 'The Palms' was sung long before the Ripleys were born, and I want to find out who is getting him to revise it.

"One member of the school committee—Joseph Lee—contributed $1,000 to a campaign to have his cousin, Miss Curtis, sit in the board beside him and help him make the school laws."

Bishop Urges More Bible, Less 'Bridge'

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—In an address at the Garrick Theatre, Bishop Charles P. Anderson, of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago, said:

"It is time to get back to first principles. We should again start to tell our children the old Bible stories and to take them on our knees and teach them how to pray. I am afraid the knees of many of you mothers are where your children cannot get at them—under the bridge table."

Did Not Report 450 Providence Births

PROVIDENCE, March 6.—Superintendent of Health Charles V. Chapin has issued warning to all physicians in this city to report all births that come to their professional attention. He says that in 1913 there were 450 births which have not yet been reported. Ninety-six physicians are responsible for this neglect, he finds. Sixteen physicians last year recorded no births at all, although one attended forty-two births.

400-Mile Trip Over Snow in Record Time

SEATTLE, Wash., March 6.—A special to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, from Dawson, Yukon Territory, says that Royal Northwestern Mounted Police Patrol, which left Dawson for Fort MacPherson at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, early in January, returned Thursday to Dawson, having made the 400-mile trip over the snow from Fort MacPherson in 17½ days, the fastest time on record.

BROTHER TELLS OF SLATER SUIT FOR $250,000

Paul Hunt, brother of Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, the Dana Hall student under and owner of the Vinnie with Webster, today explained why he brought suit for $250,000 against his sister just as she and her two children, daughters, Esther and Hay, were sailing for Japan. He said:

"The case is simple three-fold one. It was brought to jail sentences under a bill now before the New York Assembly.

Because her husband called her an "innocent mutt" and a "crazy woman" when she objected to his singing, Mrs. Charles Albers of Hoboken, N. J., seeks a separation.

RELIED ON PROMISE.

After her parents' consultation she consented not to take such legal steps looking to its confounding and separation as her self and retain of fathers as a law fit so long as I did not interfere with them. The Supreme Court decision was in many cases, I had chosen of her father and his advice were taken. Since those cases without my assistance and no counsel employed by anyone but the signed.

Relying on Mrs Slater's promise [illegible] I proceeded. If I could do alone what she and many other people regarded as practically impossible, I presumed her claim against the heaviest odds until the cases were disposed of in her favor.

"A PRINCESS OF SPIRIT."

The wife, who is a heritage her children from her husband's grandparents, were saved to and are now under her and children's control. The Slater estate is now in the hands of these whom Mrs. Slater has assented suggested as being satisfactory her and thoroughly competent to deal with the situation.

"I have fulfilled my part of the agreement and I am doing upon Mrs. Slater's fairness of spirit to fulfill hers."

Because her husband called her an "innocent mutt" and a "crazy woman" when she objected to his singing, Mrs. Charles Albers of Hoboken, N. J., seeks a separation.

Following the introduction in the New York Assembly of a resolution to investigate the tango and other "naughty" dances, there was a rush of applicants for places on the investigating commission.

BRAZIL TROOPS RUSH TO QUELL NEGRO UPRISING

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, March 6. —A warship bearing reinforcements of troops was today ordered up the coast to Ceara, which city is menaced by the negro uprising in Northern Brazil. Although a state of siege has been proclaimed there and in the city of Petropolis, the government announced through the Foreign Office it does not consider the revolution of a serious character and that the disorders will soon be quelled.

Soldiers are making hundreds of arrests of negroes and anti-government whites who are alleged to be involved. Most of the prisoners will be sent to the government construction camps on the new Brazilian railway line which is being built along the upper Amazon and Madeira rivers.

The situation has been further complicated by a division of sentiment in the Military Club, an organization of army officers. Some favor the revolution of the present government in the State of Ceara. Others side with the revolutionists.

The government has promised to protect all foreign lives and interests.

TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT STORK, IS WOMAN'S PLEA

"Don't tell your children the lie of the stork story," Dr. Edith Idale swift declared to mothers at the Women's Municipal League, No. 6 Marlboro street. "Give them an honest answer.

"Tell the truth about life as the child is able to comprehend at the time of his questions. The question for us to consider is how to teach that knowledge in terms of simple truth, at the same time neither deceptive nor stimulating, to meet the natural child curiosity.

"In addition to the harm physically and morally which may result through ignorance is the mental attitude produced by many who abound in our kitchens, our nurseries and our schools, who find it easy and amusing to supply the information we withhold. I find it hard to believe children can ever efface the narrowing of their horizon, the crippling of their faith in their parents and the stunting of an unselfish view of life in a word the dulling of their whole moral tone.

"Through making his physical body of little concern to him, outside certain necessary habits of personal hygiene, the child will learn to consider it of no interest to others. Oh, that the potential fathers and mothers of the race may have a new and truer meaning to their privileges and responsibilities and greater dignity and beauty to the oft-demeaned word—love."

"CHILD NOT DUTY"

Fola Lafollette's Husband Says

PLEA FOR MOTHER

NEW YORK, March 6.—George Middleton, playwright and husband of Fola Lafollette, who holds a married woman should use her maiden name, today supported her idea and added:

"Marriage need not necessarily mean children. A child should be the mutual wish of the father and the mother. The woman who bears should have the say as to when it should be born. Many women should never be mothers. They are not fit for it, either by health or by temperament. Often it is not a square deal to the child.

"Feminists are recognizing that the woman who contributes five children does no more for society than a Jane Addams, who mothers the children of others."

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD TO PROBE PHONE CHARGES

An investigation of allegations of overcharge on telephone tolls and measured service will be made by the Public Service Commission, Chairman Frederick J. Macleod announced today. The board will look into the so-called meter system for telephones, whereby, it is claimed, each call is accurately registered against the phone from which it is made.

Charges have been made before the commission that the telephone company profits heavily by charges for which no service has been rendered or for calls that have not been made.

TEMPERANCE 'EXHIBIT' STIRS UP CAMBRIDGE

TEMPERANCE exhibit, a "horrible example" in wax, in a Cambridge store window. Ex-Representative Russell A. Wood calls it "disgraceful." Temperance advocates defend it and say such conditions are common in Cambridge homes.

Isaac W. MacArthur, vice-president of the Massachusetts State Temperance Reform Club, was taken issue with Russell A. Wood on the latter's criticism of a temperance exhibit in a Cambridge store. Cambridge has its election next week. Mr. Wood called the exhibit disgraceful. It showed a man lying on the floor grasping a bottle, his wife and children in despairing attitudes about him.

Commissioner of Public Safety Henry J. Cunningham, to whom Mr. Wood and others have appealed, held a public hearing today in his office in City Hall to hear both sides of the controversy. The ministers are united in supporting the no-license campaign committee.

Mr. MacArthur says: "If Mr. Wood will sacrifice the time and energy, I will take him to homes in Cambridge and show him a more touching, pathetic, and, if he sees fit to call it, disgraceful exhibit than the one in the store window. I will not show him wax dummies, but flesh and blood, ruined, depraved and wasted manhood, weeping, cold and hungry mothers, wives and children, the product of liquor, much of it sold in drug stores in the classical, cultivated, cultured and enlightened city of Cambridge."

Jews Flee Rioters in Russian Poland

CRACOW, March 6.—It is reported here that there has been serious rioting at Lodz, Russian Poland, because of a rumor that a Jewish merchant and his wife had murdered a Christian boy. A mob attacked the couple, who were seriously injured. The rioters then tried to raid a synagogue, but were prevented by the police. Many Jews have fled from the place.

Issue Warrant for Missouri Judge

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 6.—Warrants were issued today for the arrest of Judge Hugh C. Gilbert, presiding judge of the Jackson County courts, and E. E. Axline, formerly a judge in the same county, following their indictment on charges of malfeasance in office. The two men are accused of illegally approving the payment of $29,000 in 1911 to a construction company for county poor farm buildings.

TUG POTOMAC'S CREW TELL OF BATTLE IN ICE

Captain M. J. Wilkinson and the crew of the government tug Potomac, which was caught in the ice in the North Atlantic when on its way to rescue fishing vessels, and which had to be abandoned, passed through Boston today on their way to New York. The men described their flight for life over five miles of frozen ocean as a "tramp through a frozen hell, where hummocks of ice lifted their snow-capped heads like crystal tombstones."

Captain Wilkinson was extremely reticent concerning the hardships endured by himself and crew. Beyond the bare statement that they escaped without the loss of a man; that they had abandoned ship five miles off Rock Harbor on February 14, after being frozen in nine days; that the ice was thirty-feet thick, and the thermometer registered 22 below; and that William Young, Lobster Rock Light keeper, was "the best man in the world," he refused to make mention of their harrowing experiences.

The thirty-two members of the crew, each carrying an extra coat and a roll of blankets, were more explicit, however. They, too, were loud in their praise of the hospitality shown them by the natives at Rock Harbor, where they landed.

"But it wasn't cold," said one of their number. "Our flight over the ice-floe was too rapid for us to freeze. We were wet through with perspiration when we reached shore, although our outer clothing was frozen stiff."

13,000-Mile Test for Electric Collier

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The big naval electrically-driven collier Jupiter is to undergo a supreme test of the efficiency of her novel propelling mechanism.

Orders have gone forward to San Francisco, where the vessel is now lying, to start as soon as possible for Hampton Roads, the voyage to be made by way of the Straits of Magellan. The vessel will take aboard at Mare Island enough coal to make the complete trip of 13,000 miles, although she will make several stops en route.

Zangwill Says All Should Read Beilis Memoirs

Special Cable to Boston American

LONDON, March 5.—Israel Zangwill, the famous author, after reading the first instalment of the memoirs of Beilis, published in the Boston American, wrote the following:

"I have read the first instalment with deep interest. Every person, Jew and Christian alike, ought to read the whole story. I would like to see it spread broadcast among English-speaking peoples. Personally, I shall follow every instalment with eagerness.

"I myself can vouch for the truth of the picture it presents of those horrible persecutions. I know that these things disgrace the earth. It is terrible.

"The people of Christ are the Christ among peoples, and yet they are treated far worse than the most abject of other races. Your printing the story is, in my opinion, one of the best of your ideas."

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Herman Hertz, chief rabbi of England, is also much interested in the memoirs.

The next instalment of the Beilis memoirs will appear in Sunday's American.

JANE COWL GIVES WOMEN BEAUTY RECIPE

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

"There is no royal road to success; no royal road to beauty and certainly no royal road to slenderness," says Jane Cowl, the beautiful leading lady of the "Within the Law" company, now playing to crowded houses at the Majestic Theatre.

"There is nothing worth while in the world to be obtained without a price, and we may in one way or another for everything worth while. For slenderness we pay the price of exercising, which we like it or not, and abstaining from many of the foods and drinks of which we are specially fond.

"For success we pay the price of constant labor—work, drudgery and the sacrificing of many pleasures. For beauty we pay the price of endless care and the effort of exercise and absolute cleanliness."

WE EAT TOO MUCH.

Speaking of slenderness this darkeyed beauty charmingly declared: "Everybody eats too much, anyway. There is hardly a person in the world who couldn't get along and be healthier and happier if they ate only half as much.

"The best forms of exercise? Well, for me it seems to be horseback riding, and every moment I can be, I am in the saddle. But if you can't get a horse take a bicycle, and if you're ashamed to be seen riding that get up early in the morning before your friends are out and take your spin, then if you can't have a bicycle skate, walk, run—anything to be out in the open and exercising—that is if you care to be slender.

"Fresh air and lots of it will burn the fat away, and in order to get sufficient amount of fresh air we must exercise, breathe deeply and fill our lungs and bodies with it. Then we drifted to talk of styles.

HOME LOVERS HERE.

"It's the few women in Boston who are up the moment in styles and in New York it's just the reverse—it's the few who are not.

"The Boston women are more home lovers and home makers, they won't spend their last cent on styles as do the New York women. It's the outside show in New York and the real comforts of life in Boston which rank the women of the two cities.

"The women like the New York women who are the real home wreckers. They demand more money for style and display than their husbands can afford, and a whole train of misery follows. The Boston women seem better balanced.

"Suffrage? Yes, indeed! This dainty bit of femininity with the soul-searching dark eyes which look at you so keenly and soulfully one moment with dance and sparkle and twinkle in fun the next, is really and truly a favor—much in favor—of suffrage.

"I adore Mrs. Pankhurst," she informed me while I was screwing myself nearly off my chair in order to get a better peep at the wonderful line of makeup on her dressing table. "I was forgetting all about suffrage and wondering what this, that and the other was for and longing to dabble and try them all.

WILL PROTECT FAMILIES.

"If women get the vote," I heard her saying when I came to, "they will look out for the protection of their families and children. They will see to it that impure foods are abolished; that there are sanitary conditions existing everywhere and that those will not be jeopardized as they are now."

So then drifted to talk of the stage girl, her trials and tribulations. "The first act of 'Within the Law' is surely a true document of the shop girl. It's a struggle for any girl in these times to live in a city on six or eight dollars a week and keep her physical condition such that her work is efficient. If a girl forced to live on that amount is not absolutely balanced ethically, before the struggle has continued long she will begin to figure that the world owes her a living—a much better one than she is getting and she will proceed to collect.

MISERY FOLLOWS.

"Misery naturally follows in one way or another. It is possible for a girl to live on eight dollars a week—she does it—but it's a terrible struggle. So much depends upon what sort of stuff she is really made of, whether she has sufficient strength of character to struggle on and live honestly or whether she is weak enough to be caught in the whirlpool of the 'easy way.'

"A girl of any sort, struggling along in a shop making a poor salary and working hard, is far more excusable for going wrong than is the girl living at home surrounded by every luxury.

"No, I don't think every man is a fool to marry, but I think an actor or actress travel too much and are forced to be apart too much.

"The highest calling for any woman is motherhood. But all women are not made alike and some don't feel that their calling. Some feel that a career is better for them. I think settlement work, next to motherhood, is the highest calling for a woman. There is such wonderful women in the work.

CALLS TANGO DELICIOUS.

"It takes such a broad intelligence, such keen, broad sympathies and such boundless unselfishness. In fact it takes quite as wonderful a woman to be a successful settlement worker as it takes to be a successful mother. The settlement worker is a mother in a broader sense.

"The tango? It's delicious. I love it," she laughed. "Of course it can be abused, but is beautiful if correctly danced."

Then we went back again to beauty secrets, for when one talks to Jane Cowl it's hard to get beauty out of the mind.

"Cleanliness, to the point of fanaticism, is the first essential to beauty, then exercise. A girl forced to live on that amount is not absolutely balanced ethically, before the struggle has continued long she will begin to figure that the world owes her a living—a much better one than she is getting and she will proceed to collect.

JANE COWL, beautiful leading lady of "Within the Law" company, who talks on tango, exercise and suffrage.

MISS ANGLIN WINS IN 'TAMING OF THE SHREW'

Again Miss Margaret Anglin has shown a surpassing ability in Shakespearian roles. Her superb Viola the first half of the week paved the way for the enthusiastic appreciation of her Katherine of Padua by an audience which packed the Cort Theatre last night.

"The Taming of the Shrew," as presented by Miss Anglin and her company marks a new triumph for the talented actress. Here are all the wit, the human merriment, the fine play of emotions, and that once-seen-never-to-be-forgotten duel for the mastery of the husband and the shrago bride—and added to the intrinsic merit of the acting is the wondrous scenery which lent the audience into raptures over its unique excellence.

As Katherine, the lady of the ungovernable spirit and fiery temper, the long-tongued scold, Miss Anglin is simply immense. She is an unceasing delight from first to last—she makes the story of the conquering of Katherine seem vivid to the limit.

Nothing could be better than her acting in her scenes with Petruchio, and to watch her is to enjoy one's self to the fill. There is something about her work that seems to make the old story of the taming of the Paduan wife seem almost new. Miss Anglin puts new vim into it, and to see an old Shakespearian friend smiling at you with rejuvenated freshness.

But Miss Anglin is by no means the whole show. She has surrounded herself with a capable company and each does his or her work splendidly.

Sidney Greenstreet—you'll never forget his Sir Toby—shines again as Biondello. Miss Ruth Holt Bouccicault makes a more than acceptable Bianca. Others whose acting stand out bright are Harry Barfoot, E. T. Backus, Pedro De Cordoba, Eric Blind, a promising good Petruchio, Wallace Widdecombe, Harrison Carter, Fuller Mellish, Max Fisher, Max Montesole.

"The Taming of the Shrew" will be given tonight and tomorrow matinee and night. For first class evening's entertainment the comedy is just the thing.

The arrest followed the alleged discovery that his accounts were $700 short.

Boston too Slow for Runaway Boys

Walter Tina, Raymond Cole and John Tricquita, aged thirteen, fourteen and fifteen respectively, all living at No. 73 West street, Amesbury, found life in Boston too slow for them and continued their journey as runaways to Beverly, where they were rounded up by the police and their parents notified. All were disappointed at their venture, which cost them, all told, just one dollar.

WOMAN BACK OF NEW ALIBI CLAIM MADE FOR FRANK

ATLANTA, Ga., March 6.—According to Mrs. Ethel Harris Miller, instead of being in the factory of the National Pencil Company at the hour of the day of the murder when the negro, Jim Conley, swore he aided Frank in disposing of the body of little Mary Phagan, Frank was on the streets of Atlanta, bowing to his friends.

An affidavit in line with this new alibi claim was made by Mater Leffkoff, who supported the testimony given by Minnie Kern, the eighteen-year-old stenographer at the trial.

Minnie Kern's story was considered the strongest link in the alibi presented by the defence. She said she saw Frank at Whitehall and Alabama streets at 1:30 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, at which time Jim Conley declared he and Frank were carrying the murdered girl's body into the basement.

Mrs. Miller says she saw Frank at approximately the same time he was seen by Miss Kern. It was also at precisely the same spot at which he passed the Kern girl.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made fro mthe acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

We opened our BOSTON SHOP AT 205 WASHINGTON STREET. We opened here for the purpose of making clothes to order for the men of Boston, and upon these clothes to build a reputation. We are already tailoring scores of suits ordered on our opening day. It is our aim to deliver a suit when promised.

British-American Tailors, Inc.

205 Washington Street

Suit $13.50 To Order

It is not upon the price that we hope to build our reputation, but upon the suit we will make at that price. We aim to give such satisfaction to each customer that each suit will sell the next.

We Are New in Boston But Old in the Tailoring World!

The hands that direct the making of our suits are guided by 25 years' experience. The fabrics from which the suits are made include the choicest imported cheviots, worsteds, cashmeres, serges, Irish twills and Scotch tweeds, as well as the FINEST DOMESTIC WOOLENS. They are all on our counters, showing the newest Spring patterns, and we invite your inspection of them.

Suits $13.50 To Order

We are grateful to the men of Boston whose generous patronage has already assured us of success in this city. We will not disappoint you, but will make your display of confidence an added reason for our determination TO MAKE GOOD.

TAXATION DAY AT STATE HOUSE; DISCUSS GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS

This was "Taxation Day" on Beacon Hill, the Committee on Taxation taking up that part of the Governor's address recommending a change in the taxation laws and also considering an "amendment to the Constitution so that the General Court may classify property for taxation."

Others matters before committees today included:

Drunkenness and alcoholism.

Various civil service matters.

Gambling on baseball and bowling.

Licensing of telephone rates.

Cheaper gas in Boston and Marlboro.

Excluding out-of-the-State milk.

Development of Merrimac River navigation.

* * *

Early in the day the State House corridors looked as if somebody had sent out a call for all the responsible men of Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill. These were delegations from the Lowell Board of Trade, the Lawrence Chamber of Commerce and the Haverhill Board of Trade, who came to show the Committee on Harbors and Public Lands the wonderful opportunity for cheaper coal, cheaper flour and provisions, cheaper freight rates generally, that has long been overlooked in the busy and beautiful valley of the Merrimac.

* * *

Progressives and Democrats in the Legislature are to be put to the test next Week on two of their party promises to the people.

* * *

The Senate will take up on Tuesday the "Votes for Women" amendment to the Constitution.

* * *

The House, on Wednesday, will debate the proposition of a Constitutional Convention.

* * *

On the Suffrage amendment, Senator Hugh O'Rourke, of Worcester, has already cast himself for the role of "Ajax Defying the Lightning!"

* * *

* * *

"I don't believe in Woman Suffrage," says Senator Hugh, "and I know a lot of the fellows who don't, so I'm going to let them know where I stand."

* * *

Which will delight the Stand Pat Republicans and make loyal Democrats grieve, wherever throughout the Commonwealth they may be found.

* * *

If Hugh O'Rourke feels that he has not to express his personal opinion on this question, there is no reason why he should not do so and STILL KEEP FAITH WITH THE DEMOCRATS OF HIS DISTRICT BY VOTING TO SUBMIT THE PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE PEOPLE.

Senator Hugh might well say, if this IS his position:

"Mr. President, personally I am thoroughly opposed to Votes for women. I do not want women to have the vote, and she will never get it. But I came here, Mr. President, the representative of a party which, in the last campaign, gave its solemn pledge to the people of Massachusetts that they would be given an opportunity to vote for themselves on this question. Mr. President, I hope and believe the voters of Massachusetts will rejoice this amendment when it is presented to them, but, Mr. President, I shall vote today to give them the opportunity."

* * *

A statement of this sort would square Senator O'Rourke with his political conscience and at the same time show him to be a regular Democrat, who believes that a party platform is something more than a thing to stand upon.

* * *

Here is trusting sincerely that "Hughey," before it is too derned late, will hustle back to the reservation and be a good Indian.

* * *

For if you don't, "Hughey," the folks will get you next Fall as sure as puss is a cat.

* * *

The House Democrats, it was said today, are likely to vote to a man in favor of the Constitutional Convention. The efforts of the Republican management will quite likely be directed to the bring of a Democratic vote or two, but the best Democratic authority says that the House Democrats will be with their party on that platform promise.

* * *

Republican shrewdness (?) has shoved the Constitutional Convention amendment ahead of all the other proposed amendments to the Constitution, in order that these proposals may subsequently be killed, one by one, as they come along.

* * *

Of course it would have been FAIRER to have kept the Constitutional Convention amendment for the last.

* * *

By that time the Republican managers hope to have killed all the other amendments:

Taxation.

Election of Judges.

Abolishing the Senate.

Initiative and referendum.

Recall of Judicial decisions.

Abolishing the Governor's Council.

Giving home rule to cities and towns.

Permitting cities to deal in coal and ice.

Etc., etc., etc.

The Chaperon's CHATTER

With so few affairs on the society calendar these days, it is with supreme joy that the younger set hails the annual Hasty Pudding Club dance tonight at the clubhouse in Cambridge.

Among the dinners to be given before the affair is that which Mrs. John L. Batchelder is giving at her fine estate, "Edgemont," in Brookline, in honor of her pretty debutante daughter, Miss Sabra Batchelder, who will later, with her young guests, go on to the dance.

Among the patronesses for the dance, many of whom will entertain at dinner preceding the affair are Mrs. W. Henry Aspinwall, Mrs. A. H. Chatfield of Cincinnati, Mrs. C. P. Curtis, Mrs. Edwin Curtis, Mrs. A. T. Preedley of Philadelphia, Mrs. R. H. Gardiner, Mrs. A. G. Hodges, Mrs. A. Lawrence Lowell, Mrs. John Lowell, Mrs. R. M. Saltonstall, Mrs. J. H. Storer and Mrs. J. C. Willetts.

Miss Lotta Crabtree, who is vice-president of the Players' Equal Suffrage League, recently organized by Mrs. Guy Currier of Beacon street, is giving a reception here today in honor of the well-known actress, Mary Shaw. Miss Crabtree has invited among other guests, Billie Burke, Margaret Anglin, Jane Cowl, Florence Nash and other prominent players who pour tea. An attractive program has been provided. Miss Shaw reads her skit, "Our Friends, the Antis." Miss Margaret Sawyer, formerly with the Raymond Hitchcock company, sings, accompanied by Professor John S. Marshall of the Boston Symphony orchestra, while several noted speakers will give short talks on equal suffrage. Mrs. Currier presides.

A SOUR STOMACH GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends all Stomach distress in five minutes—Time it!

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspepsia troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, before you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

Goethals Won't Quit the Army in Crisis

WASHINGTON, March 6—In administration circles trouble with Mexico is regarded as inevitable. Colonel George W. Goethals is wanted by the government for service when trouble comes. Colonel Goethals has given a soldier's assurance that he will not ask to be retired so long as a possibility of complications with a foreign power exists.

WILSON'S CANAL VIEWS BEFORE AND AFTER ELECTION

Here is what the Democratic platform of 1912, upon which Woodrow Wilson was elected President, said on the subject of canal tolls; what Candidate Wilson, at Washington Grove, N. J., said on the platform provision, and what he said yesterday in his message to Congress:

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM PLEDGE:

"We favor the exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coastwise trade passing through the Panama Canal."—July 2, 1912.

CANDIDATE WILSON SAID:

"Our platform is not molasses to catch flies. It means what it says. Gentlemen who talk one way and vote another are going to be retired to a very quiet and private retreat."—August 15, 1912.

PRESIDENT WILSON SAID:

"I have come to ask for the repeal of that provision of the Panama Canal act of August 24, 1912, which exempts vessels engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States from payment of tolls."—March 5, 1914.

DISHONOR IN TOLLS REPEAL--O'GORMAN

By SENATOR JAMES A. O'GORMAN

Statement by the Democratic New York Senator and Chairman of the Interoceanic Canal Committee of the Senate.

Washington, March 5.

"I yield to no one in respect for the President's motives or patriotism and I withhold my approval of his recommendation with regret.

"Believing his proposal unwise, unnecessary and destructive of the best interests of the American people, my duty as a Senator of the United States offers me no alternative but resistance to the proposed repeal.

"Ex-President Taft, Philander C. Knox, ex-Secretary of State, Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic leader in the House of Representatives, and Richard Olney, ex-Secretary of State in Mr. Cleveland's administration, have asserted that in their opinion the exemption of coastwise vessels from the payment of tolls in the Panama Canal does not violate the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

"These gentlemen are lawyers of recognized ability and the President does not express an opinion to the contrary. He asserts, however, that no one outside of the United States defends our course.

"If he will read the London Law Review he will learn that even English lawyers have conceded that the tolls exemption is in harmony with our treaty obligations. Germans and other continental writers have expressed the same view.

"Moreover, this opinion is shared by ex-President Roosevelt, during whose administration the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was framed and made.

"The President now states that the tolls exemption constitutes a mistaken economic policy, but I prefer to accept his judgment announced when he was a candidate for the Presidency, when he insisted out the obvious economic advantages of this legislation.

"The platform of the Democratic party as well as the platform of the Progressive partly declared that American ships engaged in coastwise trade should pay no tolls, to the end that cheap transportation by water will enforce cheaper transportation by the competing transcontinental railroads.

"There has been a systematic effort to confuse the act in issue in this controversy, the word 'vessels' as in the treaty means vessels engaged in overseas trade. It would not embrace vessels engaged in local or domestic trade.

"This was the interpretation placed by Great Britain for more than sixty years upon precisely similar language employed in the treaty of 1815. The Supreme Court of the United States in Osen vs. Smith, 152 U. S., recognized the propriety of this interpretation.

"We do not exempt American ships engaged in foreign trade. Under the Panama Canal act, we treat them as we treat foreign ships. We exempt only coastwise shipping and our right to do so is substantially recognized by the British government in its note of November 14, 1912, which states: 'If the trade should be so regulated as to make it certain that only bona fide coastwise traffic which is reserved for United States vessels would be benefited by the exemption of bona fide coastwise traffic it is apparent that we are disturbed over a claim which Great Britain concedes to be grounded in reason.

"If we must purchase foreign friendship the price exacted must not involve us in national dishonor and repudiation of party pledges upon which this administration secured office."

OPPOSE SURRENDER TO ENGLAND ON TOLLS

unbroken successes to the grapple now on hand.

THE LINES ARE VARIED.

The lines are as varied as the readers are antithetical. If the Presidents wins it will be only another triumph of a great personality backed by a great office, a mighty patronage and an all-controlling party desire to support the administration.

If Mr. Underwood wins, it will be the most conspicuous victory ever won by a dauntless and far-seeing Congressman against a dominating chief executive who puts himself above patriotic advisers or party platforms.

In one sense, Mr. Underwood cannot lose. For whatever the result he will have established an alignment of following and a hearing for the real American policies which will survive defeat and outlive the memory of party divisions.

The event was dramatic and striking. The President can be relied upon always for that. He is not only a past master in politics, but he is an artist of such surpassing talents that Davis Belasco must have looked to his laurels if he had given himself to the stage.

A SPLENDID AUDIENCE.

Before that splendid audience—the floor was packed with Senators and Congressmen, the galleries thronged with the intellect and the elite of the capital and the country, the atmosphere charged with the tension of the first real battle of the administration and just beneath the diverse, yet striking dignities of Vice-President Marshall and of grand old Champ Clark, who was his powerful and well-nigh successful competitor at Baltimore—rose the pale, lean scholar of the White House" to lead the wrong side of the most desperate battle of his administration.

Mr. Wilson was received with the splendid and universal enthusiasm which is always accorded to the President of the United States, a regular ovation.

The master orator was evident in his first move—in the practice of his famous oratorical pause. For thirty seconds he stood in statue-like silence looking his great audience in the face. With the accumulated magnetism of the pause he began in tones as sweet and simple as a morning salutation, yet as tense as the verdict of a criminal jury.

The President had studied and learned of Lincoln the enormous impressiveness of brevity in a crisis. In thirteen—mark you, thirteen—sentences and 421 words his speech was done. Not a ripple of applause had marked a sentence or a sentiment from beginning to end. At the conclusion there was more applause, not to be compared in volume or unanimity to his greeting, and with the honors to be divided between the chief executive and his theme.

There was evident and universal honor for the nation's President. There was evidently a doubtful reception to the sentiments he expressed.

There were only three points in the speech of thirteen sentences which the President traveled from the White House to the Capitol to deliver.

First—The personal unproven expert statement that the exemption clause was an economic mistake.

Second—The easily conceded fact that each of the interested governments of Europe were in sympathy with England's selfish construction.

Third—The remarkable and unexplained request that in order that he might know "the facts" through "THEIR matters of great importance the Congress would grant him in unprecedented measure the right to surrender our well-won rights and dignities in the greatest economic emergency in the world.

Perhaps the President with finer judgment than our mortal ken, has sacrificed reason to brevity and dramatic appeal.

It is certainly difficult to find on Capitol Hill an unbiased man who thinks he made either a strong or convincing speech.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get only the right food. To do so you must have the proper quantity of digestive juices. You need it for brain or muscle work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an excessive secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patent medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a teaspoonful of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary druggist's bisurated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate.

MAKES YOUR BACKACHE VANISH, DRIVES ALL RHEUMATIC PAINS AWAY

New Discovery Eases Stiff, Sore, Swollen Joints and Muscles, Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders After Few Doses Are Taken.

No matter how badly you suffer, how chronic your case may be, or what has failed to cure you, your pains will leave, your aches vanish and the torturous, killing backache of rheumatism will no longer rob you more.

This is what Croxone, the new scientific discovery, does for sufferers of such troubles. It cures these diseases because it reaches the cause and removes it. It goes right to you to the walls and linings of the kidneys and clears out the clogged-up, inactive organs like water does a sponge—neutralizes and dissolves every particle of uric acid and makes the kidneys sift from the blood all the waste matter and poisons that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and leaves the kidneys in a clean, strong, healthy condition, so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

If you suffer with backache—have pains in the back or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else on earth ever used for the purpose. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves your suffering the very first time you use it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

Irish Societies Laud W. R. Hearst for Free Tolls Fight

CHICAGO, March 6.—The following message was sent to William Randolph Hearst by the 2,200 members of the Chicago Irish Societies at their celebration of the Robert Emmet anniversary:

Hon. William Randolph Hearst, New York City:

The United Irish Societies of Chicago have vigorously protested against the repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama Canal act.

We have watched with admiration and pride the splendid battle you and your series of newspapers have so long and well maintained against the repeal of the clause affecting American coastwise vessels. We say to you that your attitude on this question is our attitude and that we feel it to be no less than our duty to give you our full support in the fight against this un-American policy.

(Signed)

JAMES T. CLARKE.
President United Irish Societies of Chicago.

Demands Check on Tolls Shame

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Congressman W. D. Stevens of California has received a telegram from Raymond J. Blakesley, a well known Los Angeles attorney, in which he says:

"As an American citizen and one of the disturbed employers and salary payers of the man in White House, and, incidentally a lawyer, I want to ask the true Americans in Congress to avert the shame which would besmirch Americanism if England were yielded to because of logically impossible alleged discrimination in the Panama question.

"Let Congress, including even the local Democrats whose love of America is stronger than their grievously strained fealty to a faltering leader, make plain that America's Congress will not falter as long as the Halls of Congress are theirs."

Heritage of Health

Weaklings Overcome by Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Have you inherited imperfections from your ancestors, or have your children I bestowed imperfections from you? In the light of advanced science, the taints of debility have lost their terrors. Nervura, the wonderful scientific remedy, the greatest tonic, builds all indicators of incipient sickness or ill health—and overcome by Dr. Greene's Nervura, remedy for the nerves and blood.

Are your child weak and puny? Does it grow tired when at play? Is it always peevish and dissatisfied? Does it have poor appetite, with bad breath and irregular bowels? These symptoms indicate derangement of the nerves and blood, and nervousness will develop in the child's system unless corrected by a nerve and blood tonic perfectly adapted for the successful treatment of children. It is regarded as entirely harmless. It is a scientific prescription evolved from years of clinical and practical use. It has received more recommendations from people of prominence than any other remedy in the world. Parents should give their children the benefit of this great combination for nerve and blood strength.

Give them Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for one or all these ills. It would dangerous to neglect their health, and the system is always made strong and vigorous by this perfect nerve medicine.

Readers should take advantage of having your children examined free up to Dr. Greene, a noted specialist physician, who guarantees his Nervura and will stand behind it for all time. Dr. Greene himself will give free consultation and advice by mail to all who write him at his office and laboratory, 507 Albany St., Boston, Mass.

GUILD SCORES PEACE AT ANY PRICE POLICY

President Wilson's "watchful waiting" policy with Mexico was criticised by Curtis Guild, ex-ambassador to Russia and former Governor of Massachusetts, in an address on "Some Needs of the American Soldier of Today," at the luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce.

"In this age of peace—and we all seek peace—it is not well entirely to forget the possible state of war," said Mr. Guild. "We maintain an attitude of semi-ridicule, perhaps I may better say an attitude of polite toleration, when the militia passes before us. We do not encourage enlistment in the militia. And then when a crisis comes, and war always comes suddenly and unexpectedly, we sacrifice everything in the endeavor to prevent the inevitable.

"There has been a great growth in late years of this peace at any price sentiment—and I do not refer now to such movements as the world's peace foundation—but I do refer to the sentiment which tolerates the tearing down of the American flag and stamping it under foot by rebel neighbors rather than spend a nickel for its protection."

Inexplicable Policy From Fear of Japan

LONDON, March 6.—The London Morning Post has a long dispatch from its Washington correspondent seeking to show that President Wilson's increased attention to foreign affairs is due to a desire to cultivate the good will of the European Powers. He suggests that the United States is involved in a series of entanglements and finds itself in a dangerous isolation. The correspondent says:

"The power of which the United States stands in fear is Japan. It is of no consequence to say that this fear is groundless or exaggerated, or that Japan has no desire to challenge the United States."

The correspondent infers that the United States government also fear that England and Germany have made common cause against America, as is shown in the Panama Fair, and also in the German approval of the British attitude on the Panama tolls question and the Anglo-German understanding regarding Mexico.

British 'Homage' for Wilson's 'Honesty'

LONDON, March 6.—Commenting President Wilson's message on the Canal tolls repeals, the Daily Graphic, in an editorial, offers the President "the homage which his fine examples of political honesty and patriotic dignity merits at the hands of every citizen in the world.

"Do the right, do it loyally and generously without quibbling or hesitation is a lesson that sadly wants teaching in the world of statesmanship."

Operation to Restore Love

CHICO, Cal., March 6.—A trepanning operation will soon be performed in the hope that the brain of Mrs. Florence Folsom will be restored to its normal condition and that she will return to New York and live with her husband, Charles Wright Folsom. Mrs. Folsom gained considerable notoriety when she eloped with Gus Williams, a Nevada rancher, declaring that his brutal manners had captivated her. It is understood that Folsom will pay the expenses of the operation.

Are You Suffering From Auto-Intoxication?

The dictionary says that Auto-Intoxication is "poisoning, or the state of being poisoned, from toxic substances produced within the body." This is a condition due to the stomach, bowels, kidneys, liver or pores of the body failing to throw off the poisons. More than 90% of adults are suffering from this trouble. This is probably why most are suffering from nervousness, headaches, loss of appetite, lack of ambition, and many other symptoms produced by Auto-Intoxication. Your whole system needs stirring up.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

(In Tablet or Liquid Form)

will remedy the trouble. It first aids the system to expel accumulated poisons. It acts as a tonic and finally enables the body to eliminate its own poisons without any outside aid. Obey Nature's warnings. Your dealer in medicines will supply you, or you may send 50c for a sample package of tablets by mail. Address Dr R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Owes His Life to This Lung Remedy

If you neglect a continued cough or cold you are in constant danger of really contracting serious Lung Trouble. The cough or cold "settles on the lungs," as the saying is, and instead should be a warning to you, and preventive measures should be taken as soon as possible. In many cases Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for Throat and Lung Trouble, has brought permanent recovery. Read this:—

Catherine Ave. and Avery Place,
Queens Court, L. I. N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—In the year 1906 I was taken with a heavy cold and a nasty cough. I went to several doctors who, one or two of medicine. Finally, I went to a specialist, who gave me creosote, that made me sick. I all kinds of medicine, but it did me no good in health. I then went to the Catskills and stayed for a short time, but came back no better. I kept on getting up. I stayed there for one year, and then went to Florida and remained there a very short time. About the time of my return to Brooklyn I received a letter from Eckman's Alterative. It is now nearly two years since I took it, and I am glad to say that I have not had a cough since. I can truly say that I would have been buried long ago if it had not been for Dr. Eckman's Alterative."

(Affidavit) JOSEPH J. TROESCHER.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be a most effective remedy for Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write for Eckman Booklet. Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of remedies and additional evidence.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT IN THE MARKET TODAY

What the Panama canal will mean to Boston's food supply is shown by the cargoes that the American-Hawaiian line ships are now bringing to Boston from the Pacific coast, notwithstanding that these cargoes have to be transhipped by rail from Salina Cruz on the Pacific to Porto Mexico on the Gulf. The last vessel of this line brought upwards of 39,000 crates of canned goods, dried fruits and other food stuffs, besides 1,100 barrels of California wine.

Lobsters are becoming much more plentiful. A smack arrived in port yesterday with 5,000 live lobsters, the biggest shipment since the Canadian closed season began several months ago. The price at present for boiled lobsters is 20 cents a pound and upward.

A shipment of nearly 200,000 pounds of New Zealand and Australian butter arrived here this week on a London ship. This is the biggest shipment of foreign butter that ever came into an American port. The butter is excellent and grades with the best American dairy butter.

With the return of milder weather, potato shipments from Maine have been resumed, and the price has fallen about 10 cents a bushel.

Fish prices in the wholesale market are much lower than at the beginning of Lent, the weather being more favorable for the fleet. The prices of cod, haddock and other ground fish are about normal for this season. There is a large variety of fancy fish in the market, selling for moderate prices. Pacific salmon sells for 12 to 40 cents a pound, Pacific halibut for 12½ cents, sea trout for 20 to 25 cents, roe shad for 45 cents a pound.

MRS. LIGGETT DIVORCES RICH BOSTON BANKER

John E. Liggett, a Boston banker and reputed to be a millionaire, has deeded the family mansion in Augusta, Me., to Mrs. Margaret G. Liggett following a divorce granted her in the Maine city, dispatches today announce. The settlement of alimony was not included in the decree.

Mr. Liggett is the son of Mrs Laura L. Hill, widow of Governor John F. Hill of Maine, and is the grandson of the late Norman J. Coleman of St. Louis, secretary of agriculture under Cleveland.

Cruel and abusive treatment was alleged. The custody of the two children, Lawrence, age nine, and Margaret, age six, was given to the mother, although the father has permission to visit them.

For Rough, Wrinkled, Freckled, Pimpled Skin

As March winds, frisy dust and dirt, are apt to injure any complexion, this information will be of special value right now. If you have any complexion blemish, don't use paint, powder or anything else to cover it up. Too often this only emphasizes the defect. Besides, it's much easier to remove the disfigurement with ordinary mercolized wax. Applied nightly, the wax will gradually remove freckles, pimples, moth patches, sallowness, red or yellow blotches of any surface eruption. The affected cuticle is absorbed, a little each day, until the clear, soft, youthful and beautiful skin beneath is brought wholly to view. Ask the druggist for one ounce of mercolized wax and use this like you use cold cream. Remove in morning with soap and water. Many who have tried this simple, harmless treatment report astonishing results.

If bothered with wrinkles or furrows, a wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel will prove wonderfully effective.

Ouch! Backache Rub Lame Back

Rub Pain Away With a Small Trial Bottle of Old "St. Jacobs Oil"

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into your back, and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly and surely. It never disappoints.

Delices des Dames.

Ferrari-Fontana gave a dinner at the Lenox to celebrate the christening of his daughter. The menu was elaborate. Fontana, reading it over, was amused to see the item "Delices des Dames," and immediately banged his fist on the table.

"How you call that in English?" he asked.

"Delight of the ladies," replied some one.

"Ah, it is Vanni Marcoux."

Marcoux's popularity with the female sex is well known and the big French bass hung his head when everybody rolled with laughter. The dinner went on. Finally came coffee and cigarettes. Suddenly Fontana roared for the waiter.

"You have forgotten something."

"No, sir."

"Yes, indeed. Where are the delices des dames?"

"You have had them, sir."

"No."

"Yes."

"Show them to me."

The waiter returned with a platter containing little eclairs and fancy cakes. Indignation and laughter.

"It doesn't take much to delight the ladies in this country," said Fontana.

His Masterpiece.

J. Arthur Young, late of "The Yellow Jacket" cast, and popular stock favorite, is a great lover of music and a composer of no mean ability. He has not as yet produced what he considers his masterpiece, but feels confident he has one that is bound to come to the surface some day and make him famous.

After working for several hours over a certain composition the other day he suddenly exclaimed to his wife: "Ah, at last I have fame within my grasp!"

"How is that," she asked, somewhat indifferently, having heard the same remark before.

"You known Mendelssohn's 'Wedding March' and the marvelous repute it brought him?"

"Yes, but what of it?"

"Well," said Young, "I am going to write a divorce march."

Before the Footlights.

Otis Harlan has a small daughter yet under her tenth year, and this season while he was on tour with "Little Boy Blue," he received a picture postcard from her on which the drawing had been made by herself.

The picture showed in crude fashion a man with a wooden leg sitting before an open fireplace. The man was asleep, the artificial member being thrust forward until it was in very apparent danger of being immediately ignited by the blaze.

Father's Corner

CONDUCTED BY AMOS P. GOOP.

Father of eight children, including one pair of twins—six living, two at the expense of the State.

It has long been my opinion that the fathers are being neglected. Nobody gives them any advice, sends them recipes, supplies them with fashion notes, praises them for having so many children, or otherwise encourages them.

Therefore it has been decided to establish the fathers' corner so that here the loving hearts may be given an opportunity to beat unchecked before a sympathetic circle.

Have you read the remarkable statement of Dr. Algernon Sydney Crapsey. He says:

"The great industrial revolution in which we are living has destroyed the family. The father today is an almost pitiable object of contempt. Man is no longer master in his own house. If a woman has the money she is supreme. If not, then the man must get it for her. The spirit has disappeared as far as the father's authority over woman is concerned."

It is evident that Dr. Crapsey is one of us and we have sent an agent out to get him to become a regular contributor to this corner.

SOCIAL NOTES.

The Dorchester Fathers' Club held its weekly meeting in Flannigan's Cafe Saturday night. The subject was "How to Prevent Our Wives From Going Through Our Pockets." It was ably debated by Father Thomas Todd, who maintained that if the men didn't bring anything home with them, women would soon give up for lack of result.

John W. Mott, the father of eleven children, was in court yesterday charged with being drunk and disorderly. Mr. Mott dramatically defended himself, and declared that his reason for being drunk was that two of his daughters had just got married and brought their husbands home to live on him. Judge Debussy, who is also a father, shed tears, discharged Mr. Mott and bought him some refreshments after court adjourned. "Fathers must stand together," is the judge's motto.

HALL CAINE'S GREATEST STORY

THE NARRATIVE OF MARY O'NEILL FOURTH PART I FALL IN LOVE

Copyright, 1912, by Hearst's Magazine. Copyright, 1913, by Hearst Magazine. Copyright in Great Britain. Copyright, 1912, by T. P. Lippincott Company

SIXTY-SEVENTH CHAPTER.

NOTWITHSTANDING Martin's tenderness I had a vague fear that he had only pretended to submit to my will, and before the day was over I had proof of it.

During dinner we spoke very little, and after it was over we went out to the balcony to sit on a big oak seat which stood there.

It was another soft and soundless night, without stars, very dark, and with an empty echoing air, which seemed to say that thunder was not far off, for the churning of the night-jar vibrated from the glen, and the distant roar of the tide, now rising, was like the rumble of drums at a soldier's funeral.

Just as we sat down the pleasure-steamer we had seen in the morning re-crossed our breadth of sea on its way back to Blackwater; and lit up on deck and in all its port-holes, it looked like a floating cafe chantant full of happy people, for they were singing in chorus a rugged song which Martin and I had known all our lives—

Ramsey town, Ramsey town, smiling by the sea,
Here's a health to my true love, wherever'er she be.

When the steamer had passed into darkness, Martin said: there's something I want to know. . . . If you cannot divorce your husband, and if . . . if you cannot come to me what . . . what is left to us?"

I tried to tell him there was only one thing left to us (as much for myself as for him) I did my best to picture the spiritual heights and beauties of renunciation.

"Does that mean that we are to live apart?" he said. "You go in your way and I going mine . . . never to meet again?"

That cut me to the quick, so I said —it was all I could trust myself to say—that the utmost that was expected of us was that we should govern our affections—control and conquer them.

"Do you mean that we are to stamp them out altogether?" he said.

That cut me to the quick too, and I felt like a torn bird that is struggling in the lime, but I contrived to say that if our love was guilty love it was our duty to destroy it.

"Is that possible?" he said.

"We must ask God to help us," I answered, and then, while his head was down and I was looking out into the darkness I tried to say that though he was suffering now he would soon get over this disappointment.

"Do you wish me to get over it?" he asked.

This confused me terribly, for in spite of all I was saying I knew at the bottom of my heart that in the sense he intended I did not and could not wish it.

"We have known and cared for each other all our lives, Mary—isn't that so? It seems as if there never was a time when we didn't know and care for each other. Are we to pray to God, as you say, that a time may come when we shall feel as if we had never known and cared for each other at all?"

THROAT FLUTTERED

My throat was fluttering—I could not answer him.

"I can't," he said. "I never shall—never as long as I live. No prayers will ever help me to forget you."

I could not speak. I dared not look at him. After a moment he said in a thicker voice:

"And you . . . will you be able to forget me? By praying to God will you be able to wipe me out of your mind?"

I felt as if something were strangling me.

"A woman lives in her heart, doesn't she?" he said. "Love is everything to her . . . everything except her religion. Will it be possible for you either . . . will it be possible for you either?"

I felt as if all the blood in my body were running away from me.

"It will not. You know it will not. You will never be able to renounce your love. Neither of us will be able to renounce it. It isn't possible. It isn't human. . . . Well, what then? If we continue to love each other—you here and I down there—we shall be just as guilty in the eyes of the Church, shan't we?"

He did not answer him, and after a moment he came closer to me on the seat and said almost in a whisper:

"Then think again, Mary. Only give one glance to the horrible life that is before you when I am gone. You have been married a year . . . and you have suffered terribly. But there is worse to come. Your husband's course infidelity has been shocking, but there will be something more shocking than his infidelity—his affection. Have you never thought of that?"

I started and shuddered, feeling as if somebody must have told him the most intimate secret of my life. Coming still closer he said:

"Forgive me, dear. I'm bound to speak plainly now. If I didn't I should never forgive myself in the future . . . Listen! Your husband will get over his fancy for this . . . this woman. He'll throw her off, as he has thrown off women of the same kind before. What will happen then? He'll remember that you belong to him . . . . that he has rights in you . . . that the infernal law which denies you the position of an equal human being, gives him a right—a legal right—to compel your obedience. Have you never thought of that?"

For one moment we looked into each other's eyes; then he took hold of my hand and, speaking very rapidly, said:

"That's the life that is before you when I am gone—to live with this man whom you loathe . . . year after year, as long as life lasts . . . occupying the same house, the same room, the same . . ."

STAMMERED OUT STORY

I uttered an involuntary cry and he stopped.

"Martin," I said, 'there is something you don't know."

And then, I told him—it was forced out of me—my modesty went down in the fierce battle with a higher pain, and I do not know whether it was my pride or my shame or my love that compelled me to tell him, but I did tell him—God knows how—that I could not run the risk he referred to because I was not in that sense my husband's wife and never had been.

"And that compact has been kept?"

"Yes."

"Then it's all right! Don't be afraid. You shall be free. Come in and let me tell you how! Come in, come in!"

He took me back into the boudoir. I had no power to resist him. His face was as pale as death, but his eyes were shining. He made me sit down and then sat on the table in front of me.

"Listen!" he said. 'When I bought my ship from the lieutenant we signed a deed, a contract, as a witness before all men that he would give me his ship and I would give him some money. But if after all he hadn't given me his ship what would our deed have been? Only so much waste paper."

It was the same with my marriage. If it had been an honest contract, the marriage service would have been a witness before God that we meant to live together as man and wife. But I never had, therefore what was the marriage service? Only an empty ceremony!

"That's the plain sense of the matter, isn't it?" he cried. "I defy any priest in the world to prove the contrary."

"Well?"

"Well, don't you see what it comes to? You are free—morally free at all events. You can come to me. You must, too. I daren't leave you in this house any longer. I shall take you to London and fix you up there, and then, when I come back from the Antarctic . . ."

Chatter You Hear in Hotel Lobbies

Knowledge Is Power.

He is a well known physician now, but he wasn't then. It was his first case and he meant to make the most of it. The patient was a small child, son of old Farmer Jorkins.

With his best bedside manner in full swing, the young doctor sat by the little one's cot, holding his hand, while the father and mother stood anxiously, by, waiting for the verdict. At length, putting his watch back in his pocket, the young man rose and addressed the waiting parents.

"You need have no fear," he announced, smiling majestically. "He will soon be among you again. He is suffering from a slight distention of the diaphragm directly due to a disturbance of the intestinal epidermis. Avoid giving him unripe fruit, as that would cause an irritation of the stomachic coating, thereby producing spasmodic spasms—which is really what is the matter with him now."

"Just think of that," muttered Jorkins to his wife. "And I thought it was stomachache!"

And Then—

"Gentlemen," said the chairman of the Old Rollickers' monthly dinner, "if I break this bone in two, whom would it represent?"

Not many guesses came, for the majority of the guests were past riddles at that time of the evening.

"Washbone," boisterously suggested one merry guest.

"Bonapart—bone-apart! See?" corrected the chairman.

The merry gent in question was particulary tickled at the answer, and, having reached his residence at 2 a. m., after various wanderings, woke his good lady to impart to her the excellence of his latest quip.

"If I had a bone and broke it in half, whom would it represent?" he sputtered.

"Worm——" she gasped.

"No, Napoleon, my dear!" he said triumphantly.

One for the Witness.

The case had been long protracted and was going none too well for the defendant. His counsel, therefore, had recourse to bullying methods.

One of the plaintiff's witnesses, a notorious old jailbird, was just left the box, his place being taken by an old plasterer.

"Have you ever been in prison?" asked the lawyer.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness—"twice."

"Ah! And for how long, may I ask?"

"First time for an afternoon. Second time for about an hour. You see, sir," continued the witness, taking advantage of the barrister's confusion, "I was sent to prison to whitewash a cell for a lawyer who had been robbing his clients."

JEWISH CHARITY BALL PROVES TO BE BRILLIANT SUCCESS

The great Purim charity [illegible] at Symphony Hall given by the Federated Jewish Charities surpassed any previous ball by the organization, and Summit L. Hecht and the others who were active in perfecting the arrangements were today warmly praised for the result of their efforts. The proceeds were the largest on record.

Governor Walsh led the grand march with Mrs. Joseph H. Herman. A feature of the evening was the presentation to each guest of a souvenir book, containing articles by prominent men and women.

During the grand march calcium lights thrown upon the marchers made a brilliant spectacle. Of the 3,000 present at least 600 were in the march which was directed by Summit L. Hecht, J. M. Morse and A. W. Kaffenburgh. Governor Walsh and Mrs. Herman were followed by Joseph H. Herman and Miss [illegible] Frankenstein, Frank J. Donahue and Mrs. A. P. Spitz, Major Dukelow and Mrs. Edwin Dreyfus, Mr. and Mrs. S. Vorenberg, A. P. Spitz and Miss R. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kosh[illegible], Mr. and Mrs. Max Mitchell, Mr. [illegible] Feibelman and Emil Feibelman.

The hall was tastefully [illegible]. The first balcony was [illegible] boxes. The orchestra was hidden behind a bank of evergreen [illegible] the opening number until [illegible] promenade numbers after [illegible] the dance music. It was only after midnight that dancing was continuous.

ANNIVERSARY BALL.

Although the ball was under the auspices of the Federated Jewish Charities, it was the fifteenth anniversary of the United Hebrew Benevolent Association, the oldest of Jewish charities, the most influential and the leading factor in the federation, which is composed of the United Hebrew Benevolent Association, Hebrew Women's Sewing Society, Hebrew Industrial School, Home for Jewish Children, Boston Branch Baron de Hirsch Committee, Immigrant Aid Society, Mt. Sinai Hospital Society, Leopold Morse Home and the Free Burial Society.

Eight years ago when the federation was organized the last public ball was given by the societies and it was then decided that it could continue without further attempts to raise funds except from its [illegible] contributors. Need has [illegible] compelled reconsideration of [illegible] decision and therefore the [illegible] given.

A STORY IN TWO PARTS.

This is a story of the comedy of nations and the tragedy of love. [illegible] recorded in the archives of [illegible] [illegible] buried forever [illegible] stories of [illegible] mighty [illegible] generals and statesmen who [illegible] in it.

One of these—I shall not say whether he was general or statesman—told me the story. He has [illegible] drawn into confidence. He called the girl "Eleanor" and the boy "Lieutenant Otto" when he [illegible] the story. [illegible] He gave no names to the generals [illegible] statesmen. I will give them my own names for the sake of the story. What were the two mighty nations whose petty but perilous discord gave rise to the tale of passionate adventure you can easily guess. I shall be grateful for your guessing, because if the names were named my foreign travels would henceforth be confined to either the interior of Africa or the interior of a political prison.

Lieutenant Otto was an attache of the [illegible] Embassy [illegible], in the capital of Y——. Young as he was he had made a splendid record in the army and in the brief diplomatic service he had seen. He had faced the easy fighting amid battle smoke and the hard fighting among diplomats.

It was during a visit to Vienna that he met Eleanor. He was but twenty-nine; she but twenty-three. But she had already won the admiration of three capitals by her wonderful dancing, and her fame was growing.

She was one of those women whom admiration inspires but never can spoil. She was young and beautiful, and ardent and gay, but ever her own mistress. [illegible] homage of the young [illegible] Lieutenant was more to her, in its frankness and sincerity, than would have been the lavish selfish homage of a prince.

The two, in spite of their strangely sophisticated lives, turned their hearts to love as naturally and simply as two flowers would turn to the morning sun.

As she traveled their letters were daily—often more than daily. Their thoughts were always in unison, and, when he was assigned to be attache at Y——, under the ambassadorship of stout old Count von Valso, the telegraph wires sang her congratulations. They sang better than that, for they said that she would be in Y—— in the Spring season.

She was more beautiful than ever. She had thrust all thought of fame aside to come with her mother to Y—— and be near him.

The old ambassador, who knew of the attachment, was gruffly lenient. He told Otto he was a worthless young scamp—and then told him to let work go for a while and [illegible] duty called.

"I hope I shall always be ready to do that, Your Excellency," said Otto.

"I hope so," said the ambassador—and he was not smiling now.

What cares Otto whether his chief smiled or not, whether duty called or not? He had three weeks free to watch the smiles of Eleanor—to roam with her through the parked forest of Steinwald, where the Spring flowers were just edging through the grass and the unfolding leaves were touching with a soft green filament the trees and shrubs along the paths.

Once they rode as far as the grim fortress of Y——, fifteen miles out of the city, and met General Bernekamp [illegible] of all the armies of the Emperor—not Otto's Emperor, you understand, for Otto was a friendly dweller in a foreign land.

The lieutenant saluted. The general, who was accompanied by an aide and riding rather briskly from the fort, responded mechanically. He sped past, but drew rein.

"Is it my young friend from the embassy of old Von Valso?" he called back.

Otto wheeled with a blush of pride. The general came back. But Otto soon saw that the compliment was not for him. The keen, hard, amorous eyes of the general were for Eleanor alone.

"What an old brute!" she commented, laughing, as the general departed. "He asked me to his fort. Who would want to go to such a gloomy place—and to see such a gloomy person?"

Otto's good humor was somewhat restored, and his jealous fears had sped away. They rode on around the fortress, but they were always a long way from it, for no foreigner ever came near. Sentries were posted at every thousand yards.

"Some day, you know, we may be fighting here," said Otto to Eleanor.

"Fighting?" People do not fight any more," she said. "People—people love."

His hand clasped hers upon the rein.

CHAPTER III.

They rode back before the sun was down, and there was a cozy little supper in her apartment.

"And you haven't once asked me to dance for you." Eleanor rebuked him.

"I am jealous of your dancing—you might some day fall in love with it," he replied.

"What a brave soldier! Afraid of a footstep," she jeered.

"I will face the peril. Go forward," he said laughing. But now he had to coax and beg before she would dance for him.

And how she danced! Eleanor had been described by a famous French poet as a "rose leaf that fell in love with the wind." But the poet had seen her only on the stage.

For Otto she danced as no monarch had ever seen her. For him she put her soul into her art. He sat enraptured before her. He seemed to be in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] future should love him—should one day be his—it seemed absurdly absurd, impossible. Her fame would hold her away from him, he could never hope to possess her.

Ah, but could he not?

She had swung to his side in one of her whirlings about the room and suddenly [illegible] in his arms.

Thrilled, reassured, happy, he held [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and it would not have mattered if she [illegible] [illegible] was her daughter [illegible] [illegible] Otto [illegible] [illegible] Eleanor [illegible] very [illegible] orderly—a general at the least."

Otto hurried to the door.

[illegible] exclaimed [illegible] pride of such a messenger. "What has happened?"

"Yo[illegible] the Embassy, my boy, [illegible]," said the Count gravely. His voice held a tone that aroused Otto's wonder, [illegible] no questions.

CHAPTER IV.

Present wer[illegible] whose [illegible] are now [illegible] in the history of [illegible].

A message had come from their Prince—call him [illegible] emperor or czar [illegible] will I am not bound to [illegible].

"The plans of [illegible] fortress of Y——," repeated Von Valso, shaking his gray head [illegible] as Otto entered.

"Lieutenant," he [illegible] peremptorily.

Otto stiffened like a ramrod and saluted.

"There is information [illegible] the Count in the same [illegible] matter of fact voice of command that the fortress of Y—— is to be enlarged on a great scale in view of the present strained relations between [illegible] [illegible] a hostile move. [illegible] friendly [illegible] are to obtain the [illegible] fortress at all hazards. I believe you told me you would go where duty called."

"I did, your Excellency. I have the honor to repeat the words."

The old Count rose from the table and put his arm over the boy's shoulder and led him aside.

"There is no way to tell you how to go about it," he said. "I am going to place the matter in your [illegible] extent will be [illegible] will die or [illegible] gratitude of the nation."

He turned [illegible] council [illegible]. His voice was brusque again. "That will do [illegible]."

As the Tub is to Outward Cleanliness, so is S. S. S. to Inward Purity

Wherever men gather together in city club or country store there is certain to be someone who knows what was accomplished by S. S. S. It is usually some stubborn case of an indolent blood eruption, or some skin affliction that long defied all other treatment. The cold ear, trained to a special school, is indifferent to the enthusiasm of the so-called laymen. But the actual experience, the obvious proof, the living witness is at least a message of hope to anyone that is similarly afflicted. And, after all, to purify the blood is not so much a question of probability as it is of good judgment and persistency in the selection and use of an appropriate remedy. The fact that S. S. S. is a vegetable preparation with pronounced catalytic effect means volumes to those who actually require a blood [illegible]. In a condition of perfect health the system takes care of itself.

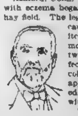
This means that impurities absorbed by the skin are checked and made harmless by secretions selected by nature to render this peculiar service. It also means that the digestive [illegible] will soon adjust itself to [illegible] derangement by the innate power of elimination.

And it also means that the atmospheric impurities which are [illegible] the respiratory system and lodgment in the tissues and set up a condition of disease are attacked and made innocuous by the body's ability to take care of itself when in a perfectly healthy condition. But as it is rare that anyone is in this state of ideal health, all sorts of diseases attack the blood. Thus the system must have help and S. S. S. has been found to give this help. Whether the impurities take the form of rheumatism, catarrh, malaria, eczema or other external manifestations of blood poverty, S. S. S. seems to provide the peculiar assistance required by the emunctories to overcome the destructive influence of retained body wastes.

From the fact that S. S. S. is purely a botanical preparation, it is accepted by the weakest stomach and has great tonic influence in all the digestive organs. It is certainly a wonderful blood medicine, and is prepared direct from native materials gathered by the experts of the famous Swift Laboratory. Not one drop of minerals or drugs is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. And if you desire skillful advice and counsel upon any matter concerning the blood and skin write to the Medical Department, The Swift Specific Co., 402 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "just as good" and S. S. S. Beware of all substitutes.

ITCHING BURNING ECZEMA ON LEG

Caused Much Suffering and Loss of Sleep. Skin Had Scalded Appearance. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Removed Trouble.



Ashford, Conn.—"My husband's trouble with eczema began by overheating in the hay field. The legs were seriously affected causing much suffering by itching and burning with more or less loss of sleep for two weeks. The part affected was of a deep red color, the skin having the appearance of being scalded. The eczema came out with a rash.

"He was given some kind of a powder to use from which he received no benefit, then he tried ——— with no better results. After trying both remedies for two weeks he obtained the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Relief came from once using and he continued the treatment for two weeks and removed the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. I. P. Richards, May 5, 1913.

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath, to assist in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, announces

A Free Public Lecture on CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

By William D. McCrackan, C. S. B., member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., in the Church Edifice, Falmouth, Norway and St. Paul Streets, Back Bay, Boston, Friday Evening, Mar. 6, 1914, at 8 O'clock.

TREMONT TEMPLE—LAST WEEK
DAILY, 2 and 8. 25c, 35c, 50c
CAPT. SCOTT'S SO. POLE PICTURES

To show the strain [illegible] seventeen-inning battle in Philadelphia, I will relate an [illegible] connected with it. A certain Detroit outfielder dropped a [illegible] fourteenth inning. It looked then as if this error would cost us the game and the championship. We all came to the [illegible] threatened to do this player bodily harm if we lost.

Jennings endeavored [illegible] over the situation, but none of us was speaking to one another throughout the rest of the game.

The first [illegible] membered. The same resulted in a tie when "Sn[illegible] Lougl in allowed our clean [illegible] ference on a fly ball with [illegible] tionally came [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] they tell me [illegible] Snodgrass out [illegible] the taxicab on the way back to the hotel from the park.

Hard Work Fighting for Batting Title.

When a man is working for the batting championship, as I have been for the last several seasons, especially if there is such an opponent as Jackson in the league, he faces a bad [illegible] tele, my eyes bothered me last season, and I did not expect to retain the leadership in the averages.

Mrs. Cobb was the only member of the family who was certain of the outcome. She insisted all the way through that I would win out. Hereafter, though I intend to forget the batting averages and just play the old game. I go down twenty pounds in weight each season between the opening and the close after I have trained all the surplus off in the Spring.

It is a tough situation when players on the same club "ball" you up on plays. There was a man on the Detroit team who failed time after time to score from second on a hit and run play when I followed him with a single. It was because he did not make a good enough start off the bag with the pitch, although the play was planned for the purpose of scoring him.

He would pull up on third and give the catcher a chance to throw me out at second. This made me look foolish, and as if I was trying for a record instead of making the play as it should be done.

Whenever some easy play is missed it usually results in defeat in a close game. This is tradition among ball players, and the man who makes it faces a tough one. I could recall numberless incidents of this sort. I mean that if the batter hoists an easy foul fly and the catcher misses it, the batter [illegible] with a hit [illegible] to be [illegible] field.

They Hate to Hear These Things.

The chances are that the [illegible] will bust the ball all over the lot after that. The superstition is based on the old one of retribution for busting. Once a pitcher hears that [illegible] believes that the batter [illegible] Managers go crazy [illegible] youngster blurt it out [illegible] is a common yelp of the [illegible]

Jennings [illegible] recruit into a game [illegible] season which proved to be [illegible] with the White Sox [illegible] the slow ball king, was working for us, and he had held Callahan's team scoreless for eight innings [illegible] we had garnered one run. The contest took place in Detroit. As we took the field for the ninth this youngster yelled at Dubuc "Three more men, old boy."

Right there we all seemed to feel that the game was gone. The Sox got three runs.

In the extra inning game and the last one of the 1912 world's series the Giants all knew that Speaker would make a hit after both Merkle and Meyers had missed his easy foul. Instead of Snodgrass' muff I consider that this was the crucial play of the game. When I saw that fall drop safe from where I was sitting in the press box, I said to my side partner, a newspaper man:

Ford went eight innings against the Athletics on the morning of last Decoration Day without [illegible] a hit. In the ninth, Peckinpaugh lost a chance for a double play that would have finished the game. After that Mack's team broke up the ball game.

A ball player's actual hours may be short, but he is always facing tough ones in his working time. They tear the nerves out of a man. In fact I hope to quit the game when I am thirty and go into the cotton business. My age is twenty-seven now.

ANOTHER NEW RECORD WAS ESTABLISHED in the All-Star League at the weekly session at Littlefield's by Thornton of the Somerville team who put up a single of 140. The former record of 146 was made by Charlie Ga[illegible] of the Federals only last week.

WITH THE EXCEPTION OF REVERE moving into a tie with the Federals for second place, the standing in this league remained practically the same.

ADAMS SQUARE DROPPED A POINT TO the All-Stars but is still four points to the good at the top of the league.

NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT ADAMS SQUARE will face the Federals in what gives promise of being one of the most hotly contested matches of the season. While the Peltons and the Greens are battling, Revere will be stacked up against the All-Stars and the Beach bowlers have a good chance to pull up on the top of the pile.

THE INDIVIDUAL WORK IN THE ALL-Star last night was all that could be desired as the following scores will show: Waters 366, Thornton 366, McKee 348, Miller 339, [illegible] 333, McConville 329, Patsy [illegible], Bra[illegible] 322 and Taylor 32[illegible].

SOMERVILLE TOOK ALL FOUR POINTS from Littlefields, the latter team being the only one to draw a blank.

WITH ONLY TWO MORE WEEKS TO BOWL it looks as though Mahoney, Woods and Melaas [illegible] finish the high average men in the [illegible] League. The [illegible] for first place [illegible] ization is still unbroken.

CRI[illegible] & PIERCE AGAIN WON THE champion[illegible] in the Wool League.

The premier school hockey game of the season will be played tonight at the Arena when Arlington High and Melrose High clash.

The championship of the Interscholastic League hinges on the result of this contest and it is expected to be the hardest fought ice battle ever waged between school teams.

Melrose High is a 2 to 1 favorite but the skeptical ones still believe that Arlington has a good game coming and will play it tonight and win.

Thus far this season Melrose High has won ten games and met defeat but twice, and has played two tie contests. Arlington has won seven games, lost two and tied one.

Arlington has a chance for the championship by a victory tonight by being awarded the league game that was scheduled with Rindge Technical last Friday, but called off by the Cambridge seven because one of its members was out of town.

Arlington has won three and lost one league game, while Melrose has won three and lost none, so an Arlington victory will give them the lead and force Melrose to play off the tie game with Rindge Technical.

Police Take a Hand in Basketball Game

Basketball is in bad in Braintree today as a result of the rough playing last evening in the games between the Fenno Five of this city and the Braintree A. A. fives.

In the first game the players were so keyed up that the referee's orders fell on deaf ears and the police went on the floor to separate them.

Karlson was struck on the head and was unconscious five minutes, but Blackally resumed play.

LET BOSTON'S HIGHEST PRICED CUSTOM DESIGNER CUT YOU A SUIT

The last days of this week I will have Mr. J. Caul Macdonald take care of my Boston trade exclusively. For years Mr. Macdonald was in the fine tailoring trade in Peabody, Salem and in later years he occupied exclusive chambers in Hamilton Place. From there he took a position as designer for Scott & Co., Washington St., Boston, leaving to take charge of the designing for Browning, King & Co., New York. He is now with me at what I consider the largest salary of any custom designer in the country.

For the next three days Mr. Macdonald will take your measure and design your suit to your individual figure, at a price per suit of about 25% of the cost of a suit designed by him in either of his other positions.

SPECIAL ORDER CLOTHING BRANCH ISSUED BY AUTHORITY OF UNITED GARMENT WORKERS OF AMERICA — GENERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD — ORG. APRIL 12 1891 — REGISTERED — MADE TO ORDER — UNION MADE — 8961500 — 242

All things being equal whether a man is a union man or not he should insist and demand the union label in all his garments, for his own protection. The union label guarantees that the garment is made under sanitary and hygienic conditions. It guarantees that it is made to order. It guarantees that the man who makes the garment is a well-paid, first-class mechanic; and when you consider that I can make you a suit or overcoat at a lesser cost than the other fellow charges for equal quality, I should get your order.

Signed, MITCHELL THE TAILOR.

SPECIALS FOR MY SPRING OPENING

STALLINGS' MEN GET NEW START AFTER A LAYOFF

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

MACON, Ga., March 6.—A day of enforced idleness in a baseball training camp such as yesterday gets on a ball player's nerves, so it was with a feeling of impatience that Stallings' band of twenty seven or more athletes [illegible] after breakfast to [illegible] if they would be permitted to don the spangles and go to [illegible] field for practice. [illegible]

Dick Rudolph, who suffers the tortures of the damned at the start of every training season, could hardly lift his arm to carry his eatings from the [illegible] to his mouth and the [illegible] was right. [illegible] However in a day or two the [illegible] will be bright and chipper and [illegible] pep will be scattered in barrelfuls.

STALLINGS GATHERS IN MEN.

Stallings [illegible] the emissaries of the Federal League are about to swoop down on [illegible] for a [illegible] of ball players, so he last [illegible] wired a telegram to [illegible] Bill Sweeney telling him to grab Rub Rudolph and [illegible] under his protecting wing and make tracks for Macon, arranging to arrive here not later than [illegible] morning.

These three men are under contract signed sealed and delivered to play ball for the Boston Nationals during the season of 1914, but Stallings doesn't want to take any chances whatever with the tamperers from the Federal League.

While he does not believe that any of the trio could or would be tempted by the "Outlaws" [illegible] fers to run no risk so the players have been ordered to [illegible] here to Macon, where the "dust" of the Federals will not corrupt nor the "Outlaws" break through at all [illegible].

FULLERTON PICKS BRAVES.

The players here are beginning to get one another sorted out and most of them are now calling the others by their first names. There were so many strange ball players on the squad that for a time all was confusion not in the ball field but all around the hotel.

The departure for Stallings' plantation having been delayed by wet weather, the two little Evers children, a boy of four and a girl of two have made friends of every one around the hotel, where they are having a great time.

Hugh Fullerton, the baseball writer, has been here a day or two [illegible] his swing around the baseball training camps. He has picked the Braves to win the National League pennant. [illegible] however, to play out the schedule instead of [illegible] over the [illegible] In a day or two the critics will be able to get some sort of line on the [illegible] that the Boston club [illegible].

[illegible] known, however, it would be the height of [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] or on the [illegible].

PLENTY OF FUN FOR PLAYERS.

Stallings hopes to develop a catcher from among the five rookies he has here under his eye, and he has hopes that a pitcher or two will show above the average.

It will be some time however, before Fred Mitchell, who has the pitchers in charge, will be able to make an intelligent [illegible] to his manager. Just now the [illegible] men are taking things very easy.

There is a show of some kind every night. Night before last Honey Boy Evans was here with his minstrel show. All the players were invited to attend by Evans. All hands accepted the invitation.

Last night "Every Woman" was produced but the management did not come across with invitations to the gang, so nobody went.

Latin Captain Out.

Captain Charles Hamlin of the Boston Latin School track team has been declared ineligible to compete in the [illegible] meet March 21. Hamlin was hurt in the football game with English High and his injured knee did not trouble him until after January 1.

Cubs Sale Today; Not to Federals

NEW YORK, [illegible] go Cubs will [illegible] to Charles P. Taft [illegible] owner Taft [illegible] the Cubs go to smash. They will not be sold to Weeghman, Gilmore or any other of the Federal magnates. This was definitely determined at a conference yesterday between owner Charles Taft and the league president.

Taft is expected here today. It is known that the prospective purchaser of the Cubs has been made known to President Tener by Taft and that the chief is agreeable. Just who he may be has not as yet been divulged.

Cornell Sprinter on Hospital List

ITHACA, N. Y., March 6.—Andy Reller, the greatest sprinter that has represented Cornell in years, will be lost to the track team until late in April and it is doubtful if he will be able to come back to his real form in time to participate in the college [illegible].

Reller was operated on recently for mastoiditis and the operation left him in such a weakened condition that it was thought advisable to send him to his home in St. Louis.

Giant Shortstop Fractures Finger

MARLIN, Tex., March 6.—Arthur Fletcher, the Giants' shortstop, broke the third finger on his left hand at practice yesterday and as a result will be on the shelf for a few weeks.

He will, however, take enough exercise to keep in good trim so that he can step in whenever the trainer says the injured finger will stand it. The digit was broken as Fletcher was taking a throw at second base.

Win for Irish-Americans.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Irish American A. C. hockey team climbed into tie with the Crescent A. C. team for the third place for the Amateur Hockey League at the St. Nicholas rink tonight, winning by 4 to 1.

SHIP DOCKS LATE.

Through a snow storm that made navigation hazardous, the world-touring White Sox and Giants came to New York [illegible] today to [illegible] [illegible] the return of American [illegible] from a foreign shore. When [illegible] the baseball [illegible] [illegible] of 32,000 miles, during which they made about $[illegible] clear above expenses.

The C[illegible] liner Lusitania, with [illegible] led by Manager John J. McGraw of the New York National League Club and President Charles Comiskey and Manager Callahan of the Chicago American League Club aboard, poked her nose [illegible] the fog over the lower bay.

The vessel anchored off Sandy Hook, late [illegible] with the intention of [illegible] quarantine about 3 a. m. and docking at 8.30 o'clock. Weather conditions upset this program, however, and the liner did not reach quarantine until 8.20 a. m.

Despite the storm the returning baseball [illegible] were greeted like heroes [illegible] The [illegible] shrieks of [illegible] came through the [illegible] the travelers realize [illegible] were back in the "Land of [illegible]" and the home of the [illegible].

GREAT RECEPTION TO TEAMS.

An official reception committee went down the bay on the ferry-boat Niagara [illegible] travelers a welcome [illegible] history of the game. New York and Chicago united in greeting the two teams and the West vied with the East in enthusiasm. The delegation of Chicago fans that came to welcome the White Sox left their snug beds in the Hotel Biltmore in the darkness of [illegible] morning and went forth to their [illegible].

Hundreds of fans waited at the pier at the foot of West Fourteenth street to add their cheers to those of the official welcomers and the shouting began as soon as word [illegible] that the liner had reached quarantine.

In the general joy of the welcome the warfare between the Federal League and organized baseball was forgotten by the fans, but the conflict waged merrily between the magnates as the Lusitania came in. Tris Speaker received an offer by wireless from the Federals, who want him to become manager of the Brooklyn team. Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers also received a radio asking him to join the Federal ranks.

JOHNSON GREETS SPEAKER.

Both of these men were unsigned by their respective clubs. The same situation prevailed as regards Mike Doolan of the Philadelphia Nationals, Lee McGee of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Al Leverenz of the St. Louis Browns. The Federals wanted all these stars.

On board the revenue cutter [illegible] the Lusitania, in addition to [illegible] small army of reporters and [illegible] photographers were Ban Johnson, president of the American League, W. F. Baker, president of the Philadelphia National League club, Charles F. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn National League club, Frank Farrell, president of the New York American League club, and [illegible] Boston [illegible].

[illegible]

"You gentlemen [illegible] that the passes [illegible] this trip were granted out of courtesy, and you must not transact any business on the Lusitania," said the port official. "The opportunity was given you for the sole purpose of greeting friends, and your business must be deferred."

DID BUSINESS JUST THE SAME.

The magnates [illegible] the Philadelphia Nationals [illegible] earnestly to him [illegible] agreeing upon terms.

Lannin sought Tris Speaker, the famous outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, and came [illegible] Ebbets buttonholed Dick Egan, second baseman of the [illegible] Nationals, and secured a promise that Egan would not listen to [illegible] from the Federals. Johnson sought out Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers and held a long conference with him.

Result of Federal Raid on Lusitania

Tris Speaker, Red Sox outfielder—Will sign with Boston again.

Mike Doolan, Philadelphia National shortstop—Will stick to Phillies.

Sam Crawford, Detroit outfielder—Undecided.

Ivy Wingo, St. Louis National catcher—Reported agreed to stick to Cardinals.

P. Leverenz, St. Louis American pitcher—Undecided.

FEAR FEDERALS TRYING TO GET DUTCH LEONARD

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 6.—After Manager Carrigan of the Red Sox and Ray Collins, likewise of the Red Sox, had held a confab lasting the greater part of an hour in the rotunda of the Hotel Eastman early today, the former stated that he [illegible] confident his premier left hander [illegible] not intend deserting to the Federal League, or rather, would not desert until after President Lannin came to town and discussed the financial question with him.

Asked once again if Collins had signed his 1914 contract, and asked point blank this time, Carrigan stated that he would rather be excused from answering the question. "Ask me about the condition of my men; all the news there is in camp, what pitcher I intend working opening day, and so on and so on, and I will cheerfully answer, but where the business interests of the Boston club are concerned I would rather be excused from answering."

Dutch Leonard did not turn in at the Hotel Eastman until late last night and he gave as an excuse that his brother, who is playing in the Hotel Eastman orchestra and who is at the Spa with his wife, are keeping house and that he—Dutch—eats most of his meals with them.

That may be the truth and then again, as Bill Bradley of the outlaws is near it may be the Federals are also tampering with Leonard.

Now to slip the Boston fans information about the practice work. It was bright and clear yesterday and Old Sol went on duty early in the [illegible].

The result was that Majestic Park which got pretty well soaked the preceding day, was dry and dusty and Mr. Carrigan was able to give the Red Sox a good inning of work. Said work was not started until [illegible] o'clock instead of 11 o'clock, the usual starting hour, as Bill wanted to make sure the field would be in good shape.

Then followed the run into town, the hike around the lower sections of the west mountain and then the plunge into the hot waters.

RED SOX REAR GUARD ON WAY TO THE SOUTH

By JACK CONWAY.

NEW YORK, March 6. — The rear guard of Colonel Bill Carrigan's band of red hosed warriors passed merrily through this fair city today en route for [illegible] Springs, where they will prepare for the 1914 pennant race.

President Joseph J. Lannin's hired men are not worrying much over the threatened baseball war between the Federal League and the dear old organized [illegible] and hope to be playing poker in mid-season form before the rattler reaches Connie Mack's town.

The party started from Boston at [illegible] o'clock this morning. Included in the number were Larry Gardner, "Chick" Harold Janvrin, George Wilson and the writer.

The party arrived in New York shortly after seven o'clock. Most ball players are unable to smash out doubles and triples at this time of the year, while they are a little bashful about executing sensational plays in the field, but we have yet to find a ball player who cannot eat three hearty meals a day.

Seeking a Husband

By CONSTANCE CLARKE.

"I HAVE the funniest feeling that we've lost our way."

"But we haven't," said Dick, reassuringly, as he peered anxiously into the six cylinders of his new racer.

"Well, why tell me so?" I grumbled. "I think it would be quite thrilling and romantic."

"I can easily lose my way if you insist, but it's simpler not to. As it is, we're far enough from anywhere to have it appear just as romantic as you like." And Dick's hand closed over mine in a way that led me to believe that he was altogether right.

"Well, if nothing's the matter, let's go on, if you really won't pretend we're lost."

"I am lost, Peggy, absolutely lost. I was lost all the while I was in Europe, and I thought I could find my way, but I couldn't. The corals were the only things that helped out at all."

I wondered what I ought to say. I thought Dick had finished thinking things about me. Or had I changed? At any rate, he never tried to fuie me now the way he used to before I stopped helping him exceed the speed limit. We used to be such pals, but I hate to have a man decide things for me without ever giving me a chance, and to tell the truth, Dick as a possible lover suggested all sorts of undreamed-of excitement.

"Have you seen much of Marian Collins lately?" I ventured, attempting to change the subject. And then as he looked at me slowly, "Oh, Dick, please start the engine."

We were on a country road and we had stopped passing machines ever since we had struck it, so evidently we were quite off the beaten track. And now that the time had actually arrived I was beginning to feel terribly shivery. At any rate, I had only had one proposal and Dick might —Oh, I don't know, that kissing problem always frightens me, and how was I going to help myself?

Dick's lazy eyes were anything but lazy just at that moment.

"Peggy, perhaps I haven't a chance in the world with you, perhaps I don't deserve one, but I'm desperate."

"Why, Dick," I said innocently, drawing as far away from him as I could in my present surroundings, "we're friends, why be desperate about anything?"

"Don't fence. I know that you can choose from a circle of men that swarm around you all the time. Why I have heard from every fellow at the club about some doctor who has been chasing around after you."

I smiled inwardly. Dick didn't know that that was all past and done with. After all it was a safe proposal compared to this one, and even if I didn't know what to say, why—oh, if some one would only come along.

"What would you do if I should kiss you?" he said suddenly.

"Don't be absurd," I said more calmly than I felt. "Let's try to overtake the others on the road; we can't be so very far away from them." He was standing on the running board and he leaned forward suddenly.

"A bargain," he whispered, "a kiss and we'll start. See, I'll crank her and we'll be off." And in a second the engine thrilled into motion.

Then Dick came back determinedly. "Peggy," he whispered unsteadily, and then he lifted me out into his arms. There was no need of struggling, he forced my head back on his shoulder and I closed my eyes with a sob. I didn't want it to happen then. And suddenly down the road came the roar of a Klaxon and a glare of light, and I slipped out of Dick's arms as Marian Collins called.

"We thought we'd lost you for good. Any trouble?" And then I was nestling into my furs and we were flying along the road again as if nothing had happened. But I was simply bewildered at myself. Do you know why? Because as I stole a glance at Dick's face, stern and uncompromising, I was glad that it wasn't all over. What if I should be going to fall in love with Dick?"

Rare and Refreshing

Jaded with the continual rush after pleasure and notoriety, the society woman sent for her physician.

"Doctor, I'm sickening for something," she said despairingly.

"Nonsense."

"Oh, but I am. Every night about 11 o'clock I have such a horribly sleepy feeling come over me. No matter whether I'm at the opera, dinner party or any function, it's as much as I can do to keep awake at that hour."

"My dear lady, I think I can give you a prescription that will cure you of that feeling forever."

And the good woman went her way, happy and contented, thinking joyously of the good times in store for her.

This was the prescription that arrived later:

"Bed from 10 at night till 7 the next morning. Repeat dose once in twenty-four hours if symptoms recur."

Dayseymaeand Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

EVERY one, all the way from Calcutta to Calgary, either has written a moving picture play, or has one in his mind. And the greatest of these are those that are still in their minds.

The scenario is the latest and most approved method for lifting the mortgage from the Dear Old Home; it is the foundation on which all modern dreams of achievement are builded; it is the ultimate hope for fame and success.

"Some day," every one says, "I will write the prize scenario," and the assurance that this prize scenario is hidden away in his brain gives the dreamer a finer epicurean relish for the efforts of others. "Humph," he will say after witnessing a moving picture play, "I can write one better than that myself!"

It was with this assurance of greater achievement that Daysey Mayme Appleton enjoyed the moving picture efforts of others. She could write a better play herself; she said it fully five hundred times.

All of us all the way from Calcutta to Calgary who have sent prize scenarios away and enjoyed our dreams of spending the money they brought us, know what a sickening sensation it is when the postman wakes us up. Daysey Mayme experienced it when "Better Believe Betty" was put back in her hands.

Like all the rest of us who have had prize scenarios come back, she knew beyond a doubt that the villainous producers had kept her scenario just long enough to steal its good points, and in her next visit to a moving picture theatre her suspicions were confirmed.

"Betty was young and pretty," she sobbed, "and I disguised her as an old maid that she might command a nephew just arriving from abroad to marry Betty; the villain kidnaps the nephew and throws him into a cellar; there are an automobile chase, a ghost, a faded rose that serves as a clew, a lurking figure at moonlight, three murders, a long-lost brother, a donation party at the preachers, a housebreaker, a chase by three policemen, a deathbed, a lost will, a jealous husband, a twin sister, a drowning, an innocent man accused, and the heroine is in the hero's arms at last. And every play given this afternoon has some of these in it, stolen from my scenario!"

Alas, 'twas true, for there is something from "Better Believe Betty" in every play.

There is no use trying any more. Like the rest of us Daysey Mayme is convinced that real genius no longer has a chance.

THEY have built a monument on top of Town Hill, Provincetown, Mass., which is the jumping-off point when going down Cape Cod, to commemorate the first landing of the Pilgrims, a month or so before they sailed across the bay to Plymouth.

This monument beats Bunker Hill in the matter of height and was the occasion of the visit of two Presidents to the picturesque village, but as far as I am concerned, the Clam Pie I discovered while touring the Cape in my car last Summer impressed me far more than the monument did, and might well be dedicated to the historical event of which all the natives are so proud.

I begged and obtained the recipe for this delicious dish from Miss Louise C. Paine, president of the Nautilus Club, an organization that provides afternoon tea for thirsty visitors and drinking fountains for horses and dogs, whether visitors or residents. Miss Paine comes of an old New England family that, while the first members didn't come over on the Mayflower, they are said to have crossed on a smaller vessel of the same line.

Miss Paine tried to tell me all about the history of the town, but I interrupted her long enough to obtain the following:

One pint soft shell clams. Remove sacks, wash in several waters to free from sand. Chop fine. Fry out three medium slices of fat pork and remove scraps. Into this put the prepared clams and cook a few minutes. Thicken with flour mixed with a little cold water. Stir until it becomes quite thick. Season with a little butter, pepper and salt if necessary. Cool and bake between crusts same as apple pie. Serve hot.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

SUM of Ma's club friends was up to the house the other nite, talking about Shakespeer & and the glad day that is cumnin wen wimmen will have thare rites, & Pa had to stay in beskause it was raining so hard that nobody was out on the streets at all. All the fun Pa was abel to have was to contradick everything that the club ladies sed, & he did that all the time.

Thare is nothing so sublime as the sublim-ity of Shakespeer, sed one of the club ladies.

I never cud see why peapul went so dippy over Shakespeer, sed Pa. Of course he was a pretty good riter, but I have just been reeding sum of the works of Rider Haggard, & I think he is grater than Shakespeer.

Oh, hovings, sed all the club ladies at onst, what in the wurld are you saying? Why, they sed, Rider Haggard was just a riter of lite fickshun, & Shakespeer was the master riter of all time. Why, he was as much grater than Haggard as a pipe organ is grater than a penny whistle.

I never cud see it that way, sed Pa. They call his stuff poetry, but he dident even know how to make the lines rhyme at the ends. Lissen, sed Pa.

Yon Cassius hath a lean & hungry look;
He thinks too much—such men are dangerous.

Now, sed Pa, do you mean to tell me that any self-respeck-ting poet of to-day would try to rhyme "look" with "dangerous"? You mite as well try to rhyme "heaven" with Manchester, New Hampshire."

But, my deer sir, you do not understand, sed one of the club ladies. Mister Shakespeer dident intend that the lines of his grate romantic poems shud rhyme. He rote mostly what is called blank verse. It has the rithem & swing & lilt to it, but not the rhyme.

Then it isent poetry, sed Pa.

Well, sed Pa, Wex Jones was telling me one time about a man that rote a poem on a envelope insted of a addreen. The envelope con-tained a letter to a wood chopper in Silver City, Idaho, & the man that addressed the letter rote on the envelop:

John Anderson, the red faced scrub

To whom this letter ought to go
Is chopping hardwood for his grub
At Silver City, Idaho.

That is what I call true poetry, sed Pa. It has the rithem & the rhyme to it, & at the salm time it is useful.

All of the ladies looked at eech other & they looked at Ma. Ma looked at Pa, who went rite on talking fast.

I have always sed, sed Pa, that a man shud esther rite poetry or prose. If it has the tinkel & musick to it, it is poetry. If it doesnt have the tinkel & musick to it, it is prose. You ladies cud set thare & argue with me al nite, sed Pa, but you cuddent change my mind a partikel.

Jest then it stopped raining & I'a put on his coat & hat & went out to visit the boys at the corner. I guess Ma & her club friends was glad. I guess Pa was glad too.

Freaks in the Family

"It's Like Going to a Circus," I Heard a Young Man Say, Watching a Crowd of Over-Dressed Girls

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ARE you one of the great freak family? It is a family composed of girls who, from all outward evidence, are parentless, and the mark of kinship is a feather extremely long, put on at an angle extremely dangerous; a hat that is extremely hideous, a dress extremely baggy in the waist, extremely low in the neck, extremely tight in the skirt and extremely split at one side.

Indeed, all their apparel is so extreme that some call themselves the Extremists and forget that to be an Extremist is to be a Freak, the two words meaning the same.

When one of the Freak family passes most turn to stare, and so extremely curdled is the brain under the extreme hat that the member mistakes the staring for admiration and glories in it, neither heeding nor dreaming of the remarks far from complimentary that are made after she has passed.

LIKE A CIRCUS

"It's liké going to a circus," I heard a young man say recently, watching a crowd of girls go by, not one of whom was dressed with sense or sanity, "and it will be the side show thrown in when they appear with purple and pink wigs."

His companion sighed and made no reply. The week before he had written to a newspaper, asking the way to meet some nice, sensible girl.

"My habits are good, I earn $30 a week, and I want to make the acquaintance of some nice girl with the object of matrimony. I will work hard for the right sort of a girl, the sort of a girl a man can take his earnings to every Saturday night knowing that she can be trusted to keep a nice home for him, buy sensible clothes for herself, and lay by for the future. I want a good, sweet, lovable working partner."

"There isn't such a thing," he exclaimed to himself, and instantly recalled it when he caught glimpses among the overly-painted and profusely powdered faces that went by of a face here and a face there that retained traces of original loveliness.

"Gee," he said to himself, "if I could only influence a lot of these girls to be less freakish in their looks I know dozens of nice young men who would ask to marry them. They think they are birds! So they are, parrots and peacocks, and what we men are longing for is a return of the nice, modest wren."

A FAMILIAR CRY

It is a cry heard often these days, and comes from the big, hungry hearts of men; men who are sensible and sane, and want sane and sensible girls for wife. The carpenter who wants a wife to help him become a big contractor; the brakeman who wants a working mate on the path he hopes to travel to become an official of his road. Every man who works with his head and hands and plans for bigger, better things, is crying for a sweet, sensible girl who will be content with him and his day of small beginnings, knowing that together they will reach a day of greater achievement.

And do you wonder that in the Freak family he has small hopes of finding her?

To Put on Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good, solid fat-making food every day, and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all boob to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They just absorb enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "blessed" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood-carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patent drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful fat-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, is wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of the thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Resinol

for unsightly skin eruptions

PIMPLES, blackheads, rashes, ringworm and, worst of all, that red, itching, scaly torment, eczema, vanish when you use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Tired though your skin is so unsightly with eruption that you shun your friends and your friends shun you, Resinol is almost sure to make it clear and healthy, quickly, easily and at trifling cost. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap have been prescribed for lucrous years for just such skin troubles as yours.

Wherever drugs are sold you can get Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For trial free, write to Dept. 6-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Avoid substitutes, they are NOT "just as good."

FRECKLE-FACE

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any of the Riker-Jaynes stores or Houghton & Dutton, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds in February and March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

A Story Full of Interest and a Punch!

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weaker this afternoon, whatever steadiness there was to the list at the opening soon departing and the price trend being downward afterwards. A number of issues receded substantially. Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio and "Katy" being among roads to suffer most under pressure.

In the local market Boston & Maine slumped because of its poor earnings for the first month of this year and the last half of 1913. By afternoon it was off 2¾. New Haven was then down ¾. There was not much speculation in this city.

By that time in New York recessions included Canadian Pacific ¼, Southern Pacific ⅜, MissouriPacific ¼, Reading 1, Lehigh Valley ⅞, New Haven ⅞, Northern Pacific ⅞, Baltimore & Ohio 2¾, Union Pacific ¾, Missouri, Kansas & Texas preferred 3½, Chesapeake & Ohio minus the dividend, 4½, Mexican Petroleum ⅜, American Can ⅜, Steel ½, Amalgamated ⅞ and American Smelting ⅜.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIO WEAK.

The New York market had a steady undertone when it opened, but Chesapeake & Ohio which sold ex-dividend, was weak and soon off nearly two points. Pressure continued on that issue and was also brought to bear upon Baltimore & Ohio, it being predicted that the latter road would have to do some heavy financing. Both issues were freely offered in London, it being cabled from there that part of the selling was on New York orders. Americans ruled weaker in London, where the Brazilian situation is as much of a bear factor at present as what is feared in regard to Mexico. Traders on both sides of the water are of the opinion that the Chesapeake & Ohio dividend will suffer under terms upon which its $33,000,000 note issue is to be handled. But Chairman Frank Trumbell of the C. & O. Board thinks the road will earn seven on its stock during the five years the notes are to run. A large assessment is dreaded by Rock Island security holders, it being announced that the system needed $50,000,000 for rehabilitation. No good news came in regard to railroads from any source. Great interest was taken in the meeting of the New Haven directorate in New York this afternoon. There were many rumors as to what stand might be taken against Department of Justice demands concerning Boston & Maine.

DECLINES WERE GENERAL.

Declines soon became general, but among the issues which receded a trifle only was Steel. It is said that the business of this concern and others in its line has not improved any this month, but the view expressed by President Schwab of the Bethlehem Corporation was more optimistic than some of his recent utterances, he remarking: "Business during the last few months has been slow, but from letters and telegrams I have received in the last few days I believe conditions are improving, and I hope they will continue to do so."

EARLY TRADING ACTIVE.

Trading was active during the first hour, when transactions aggregated nearly 124,000 shares, but as usual became quieter in the last half of the forenoon, professionals resuming their attitude of "watchful waiting." The public seemed indifferent. The market tone had weakened considerably and Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio obtained no better support. Among other issues which had receded were New Haven, Reading, Chino, Amalgamated, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania, while the decline for Steel had increased. General Motors had slumped three points.

There was no new phase of the Mexican trouble and it was not much discussed. Some traders were of the opinion that there would be no developments at Washington concerning it unless Mexicans become even more murderous until after Congress had acted upon the President's proposition to repeal the free provision in the Panama Canal bill. In the event of Congress refusing to do so, it was thought by some that some very embarrassing international complications might arise.

At the end of the morning Missouri, Kansas & Texas was one of the weakest rails, common having declined more than a point and preferred being off three. Atchison was not much changed in conditions around over midday.

BOSTON & MAINE LOWER.

Boston & Maine was weak in the Boston market, which was easier and quiet at the opening, with the range of business very narrow. There was not much trading in local coppers. They averaged fractionally. Reductions in teh price of metal is considered evidence that general trade is not recovering.

Boston Maine receded nearly three points, selling below 40 during noontime. In its report for January and the last half of 1913 it showed a deficit of $601,077 ascompared with a deficit of $112,670 for January, 1913, and the last Six months of 1912. Its operating income for the seven months ending with January last to called $4,879,485, against $5,861,761 for the corresponding previous period. To date this year the road's income had fallen more than $1,090,-600 below its charges.

MR. WILSON'S WEAKNESS.

In regard to the situation on the Paris bourse, it is cabled: "The main bear factors are the unfavorable news from Brazil, the incomprehensible weakness of President Wilson in his dealings with the Mexican Constitutionalists, the warlike articles in the Koelnische Zeitung referring to Russian military preparations and predicting an Austro-Russian clash in the near future; the poor copper statistics and rumors of a change of attitude by the new Russian Minister of Finances toward business."

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The London copper warrants market was quiet today, spot and futures being 1s. 3d. lower at noon.

It is reported from Washington that Senator Owen has consented to some modifications of the Pujo bill regarding stock exchanges.

ZEMO Will Stop All This Torment Instantly

FORBES FINDS NO SYMPATHY FOR THE I. W. W.

By B. C. FORBES, Business Editor.

Those of us who have experienced poverty, who have known the heartaches begotten by fruitless searching for a chance to work and have learned hov inhospitable a large city can be to the man tramping the sidewalks, are quick to extend sympathy to fellow mortals in similar plight. Enforced idleness breeds a species of hopelessness of despair, of desperation that none but those who have tasted it can comprehend.

* * *

Well-fed, warmly clothed, comfortably housed and congenially employed individuals should be slow to anger over the conduct of those of their brethren who can find no place in the world, no opportunity to work with willing hands and no pillow or plank on which to lay a beating, throbbing head.

* * *

But after making large allowance for their circumstances, the so-called I. W. W. marauders cannot hope to enlist the sympathy or support of any law-abiding citizens. Their conduct since the blizzard in New York has been an exhibition of anarchy, a challenge to civilization.

* * *

These misguided beings want the world to go back to the level of brute life. They are no respecters of property, in this respect being lower in their ideas than some animals. They claim the right to help themselves to anything they fancy in the way of food and to select any building that suits their fancy for a bed.

* * *

Once sanction that system of pillage and you knock the props from the whole structure of civilization. All laws would go by the board. Stark anarchy would be unbridled. Bloodshed and butchery would sweep over the land.

* * *

* * *

The I. W. W. outbreak has demonstrated that only an infinitesimal percentage of even the idle and the illfed share the crazy notions of revolutionary ringleaders. There was no widespread rallying to the I. W. W. banner, despite the picnic it held out for recruits—free food and plenty of it, warm shelter, indulgence in exhi... a combination which it is surprising so few loafers embraced.

* * *

It would be an insult to the nation's toilers to regard the I. W. W. firebrands as in any representing them or espousing their cause. The whole deportment of the mob was repugnant to every sense of decency. They cursed hands that fed them. They flouted offers of work that would at least have won them wages enough to procure food and shelter. They prated much about their "rights," but had nothing to say about responsibilities. The soft answer does not turn away the wrath of such characters. What is demanded is prompt, firm, fearless enforcement of the law.

* * *

The little incident has attracted more attention that it probably deserved. Yet it is perhaps just as well that the public were kept fully posted of developments and that the authorities were left in no doubt as to the attitude of all peaceable citizens toward such scatter-brained lawlessness.

* * *

A big banker remarked yesterday, discussing another subject, "Capital is capital's worst enemy." I would add that the Tannenbaum type of "laborer" is labor's worst enemy.

* * *

It is not by such tactics as his that victories are won.

* * *

However, his irresponsible ebullition must not be allowed to prejudice the cause of self-respecting labor and labor organizations. There is room for untold legitimate effort for the betterment of the worst-paid, unorganized toilers—men, women and children—here and throughout the whole country. Happily, steady progress is being achieved.

* * *

Meanwhile, let the federal government, State governments and municipal authorities all realize the urgent need for encouraging enterprise and industry, and for refraining from all words and acts calculated to retard the recovery in business which, largely owing to political uncertainty, is overdue.

HOW TO GET RID OF EXCESS FAT

Without Drugs or "Starvation" Methods

Easiest thing in the world to have a beautiful figure, free from excess fat. Just use Rheumabath! This preparation, dissolved in the hot water, has an almost magical effect. It causes the superfluous fat and effete matter to ooze out through the 2,000,000 tiny "sewers" in the skin.

Some of America's most famous actresses carry a supply of Rheumabath with them wherever they go, to keep the weight normal, the skin soft as velvet, the complexion beautiful.

It is not only a remarkable FAT REDUCER, but a great thing for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Grippe, Colds and Insomnia. It gives relief from aches and pains, lame back, stiff joints and sore muscles.

Does it by causing the skin to throw off the uric acid and poisons which CAUSE Rheumatic ailments.

You can get a full size package of Rheumabath for 25 cents. Order direct from the Rheumabath Company, Dept. 144, Minneapolis, Minn., or go to your druggist. Don't subject yourself to the humiliation of being too fat when you can obtain relief so easily, quickly and economically with Rheumabath. Valuable book free. Ask for a copy. (37)

JAIL TERM BY JUDGE IN REPLY TO BOMB THREAT

NEW YORK, March 6.—Justice Campbell struck a blow at the methods of the I. W. W. when the first case, that of Joseph Albers, was called. He was sent to the workhouse for thirty days after policemen testified that he and his comrades had interrupted worshippers at their prayers by demanding that the church be turned over to them for lodgings.

Threats to dynamite the millionaires' homes along Riverside drive, Fifth avenue and Madison avenue, were made in a letter received by Magistrate Campbell while that official was hearing the cases.

The letter notified the magistrate that unless the prisoners were set free his life would be in peril and a compaign of violence resorted to by their friends "that would astound the world."

Threats by the "army of unemployed," led by Frank Tennanbaum, the twenty-one-year-old agitator, to riot throughout the city, has caused fear in police circles that the trouble may culminate at any time in the throwing of a bomb.

Tannenbaum, who was released last night on a $7,500 bond, resumed his work of recruiting I. W. W. members today while he was awaiting the hour for appearing before Magistrate Freschi on a charge of inciting to riot. This is a felony, the maximum penalty for which is five years imprisonment.

Arrest Roxbury Man After Fierce Fight

NEW YORK, March 6.—A man who said he was James Casey, a salesman of Roxbury, Mass., was arrested today after a struggle in a candy store at No. 60 East Thirty-fourth street by Patrolman Baer. He was locked up charged with burglary.

Governor Pothier Will Not Run Again

PROVIDENCE, March 6.—Governor Pothier was asked today if he had changed his mind, following his statement of several weeks ago that under no circumstances would he be a nominee for the governorship again.

"I have not," replied the Governor.

Our Right to Self-Government: Won in 1776; Defended in 1812. Shall We Sacrifice It Now?

President Wilson met the two houses of Congress yesterday and read to them a brief address in support of his demand that American coastwise ships be taxed for using the American canal, dug at Panama, in American territory, by the expenditure of American money.

While the President did not in so many words base his plea upon the proposition that the Mexican situation makes it most unwise for us to take any action which will lead foreign nations to suspect us of a tendency to construe treaties to our own advantage, and furthermore that it would be perilous to give Great Britain, in particular, any possible ground for antagonism to this country, yet he did ask it in support of the foreign policy of the administration. "I shall not know," he said, "how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence, if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

To urge that a treaty be construed emphatically to our disadvantage lest other nations suspect us of a tendency to construe all treaties, even to misconstrue all treaties, to our advantage is tamely to surrender in a controversy without even putting in a defence.

President Wilson is charged with defending the rights of the United States in this case—rights which last August he declared to be undoubted. But now he proposes to surrender these rights without any attempt at their maintenance.

If there has been any attempt of the Administration to defend the United States' position in this matter it has not been made public. IF OUR REMARKABLE STATE DEPARTMENT HAS EVER ADDRESSED TO THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE ANY LETTER SETTING FORTH THE RIGHTS CLAIMED BY THE UNITED STATES UNDER THE TREATY ITS TEXT HAS NEVER BEEN GIVEN TO THE PEOPLE.

The State Department has not been secretive in this matter. The President has taken the public into his confidence in many ways. But all that has been thus communicated has been reasons why we should surrender to the British demand.

We challenge the record to show any publication of an American defence put in since Great Britain commenced its insistence upon protecting the Canadian railroads against the competition of the canal.

IT IS OUR BUSINESS, IT IS THE DUTY OF A PRESIDENT MINDFUL OF HIS OBLIGATIONS TO THE NATION, TO CONSTRUE ANY TREATY TO OUR ADVANTAGE UNTIL SUCH CONSTRUCTION SHALL BE SHOWN TO BE WRONG. AND IT IS NOT THE PRIVILEGE OF THE OTHER PARTY TO THE TREATY TO DECIDE WHAT CONSTRUCTION IS RIGHT AND PROPER.

Does any sane man imagine that Great Britain is not construing this treaty to her own advantage? But President Wilson is intent upon forcing Congress to accept the British construction, not only without appeal to arbitration, but even, so far as the record shows, without putting in the American defence.

Abject surrender has been the attitude assumed by the Wilson Administration from the very first.

But the President has further practically pleaded that this nation—great, prosperous, powerful, regarding itself as one of the world's Powers, able in the 125 years of its national existence to maintain its honor and dignity whenever questioned—must not today settle a question of domestic policy in accord with the act of Congress, the will of the people, and the interest of the nation, for fear of the disapproval of foreign Powers.

It seems incredible that a President of the United States should assume so timorous an attitude. It is incredible that the responsible head of any other great Power would do so.

Already he has presented this policy of pusillanimity to individual Senators, summoned to the White House to listen. Senator Thornton, of Louisiana, whose State is vitally interested in the free tolls law, and who himself favored its maintenance, puts the President's arguments into these words:

> "Responding to my request, he has answered that in his judgment the repeal of the exemption clause is necessary for the continuance of our friendly relations with foreign Powers and the success of our foreign policies."

Mark what that means!

We surrender the right to use our canal for the upbuilding of American shipping and as a needed competitor of our transcontinental railroads lest Great Britain embarrass us by interfering in a Mexican situation which is only serious because the utter folly and incompetence of the Wilson Administration permitted it to become so!

How long will it be, with this incident as a tempting bait, before Japan will force us to conduct our public schools and amend our immigration laws to suit her pleasure, on pain of her taking a hand in the Mexican situation?

How soon will Russia represent that in bravely denouncing our commercial treaties with her and refusing to resume treaty relations until American citizens, whatever their religion, be permitted to travel in Russia at will—how long will it be before the Czar's Government hints that unless we make amends for that affront it will feel obliged to protect Russian interests in Mexico?

The situation is intolerable and the President's policy is designed only to make it more so.

Had he grappled with the Mexican anarchy a year ago it would not have so spread as to menace American interests at every point.

Had he answered Great Britain's arrogant demands firmly at the outset they would not have so grown that today he must go in terror to Congress pleading for surrender.

Temporizing with Huerta, he raised up Carranza and Villa to menace him. Temporizing with Great Britain, he has set Japan and other acquisitive nations considering what concessions they will extort from the United States in this its hour of timidity and surrender.

The Two Sisters

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XXXIX.

MONDAY was always a hard day at Baird's store, and this particular Monday was no exception to the rule. To begin with, the girls at the lace counter were out of sorts and tired—Julia, because of the headache that had tortured her nerves on Sunday; her fellow clerks, because of the gay experiences of the day before. After the fashion of city folk, they sought recreation so strenuously and to such late hours on their one holiday that they were utterly fagged out when working time came again. To make unpleasant conditions worse, the day was hot. Summer, in departing, seemed to be mustering all her forces of heat in one final effort to cause discomfort. The atmosphere of the store, never too good, was warm and moist, and filled with a hundred warring odors.

The purchasers at the lace counter were exacting, and it took all of Julia's self-control to keep her impersonal smile on duty and her voice calm and polite in spite of the myriad annoyances that beset her today. Her fellow-saleswomen were openly impatient, and more than once called down upon themselves the reprimand of the floor walker, who was not in a forbearing mood himself.

It was a half hour before closing time. Julia had just noted this with an inward prayer of thanksgiving and had then turned to straighten out once more the stock of laces which a pretended purchaser had handled and tumbled. The floor walker approached and stood watching her a moment before breaking the silence.

"It's been a trying day, hasn't it?" he asked affably at last.

"Rather trying," Julia admitted, smiling wanly.

"Oh, by the way," he continued with an elaborately casual manner, "when you come in tomorrow morning will you remember that the manager would like to see you as soon as he gets to his office?"

The girl's heart missed a beat and she felt herself grow pale.

"Is there any trouble?" she asked unsteadily.

The man laughed. "None for you at any rate," he assured her. "But there is going to be a shakeup in this department, though I wouldn't let that worry me if I were you. In fact, unless I am mistaken, the result will benefit you. If you will go to Mr. Borland's office at about nine-thirty tomorrow he will be able to tell you more than I can."

He nodded to her and walked away, and Julia, somewhat cheered and not a little excited by this indefinite good news, went on with her arrangement of the stock.

At ten minutes past six she stepped out of the sultriness of the store into the hot roar of the street and made her way slowly homeward. In spite of the thought of what the morrow might hold for her in the way of advancement, she felt depressed. The noise and heat of the streets offered no respite from the bustle and humidity of Baird's. The people who passed her looked dirty and uncomfortable. The rattle of the cars seemed louder than usual. Even the garments looked hot and there was the reek of warm asphalt in the air.

As she plodded on against the current of workers she mused of how pleasant it must be to have the means to run away out of town as Delaine could. She watched the westering sun paint golden the shabby facade of a store building, and she thought of how beautiful that glow must be on tree fields, running streams and green trees. For a moment she forgot the sounds of and noise about her and felt that she must get away from it.

She had walked until she was abreast of the Public Garden, where she and Delaine had sat for such a little while one afternoon last week. A fountain leaped and fell here, and the trees and grass, vivid in the rays of the sinking sun, made the place look like an oasis in the middle of the sordid city. Urged by a whimsical impulse she turned aside into one of the winding pathways. She meant to go to the bench where she and the author had talked together and rest for a few moments. In the bottom of her heart she appreciated that, as a person who had determined to be utterly independent in her fight for a livelihood, she thought too often of Delaine. She did not feel in the mood to chide herself for the touch of sentiment that had driven her to this place just now. She was too hot and tired to feel much intuitive concerning anything.

So deep was her abstraction that she did not see a tall figure rise from a seat as she approached and come eagerly toward her. It was not until he spoke her name that she raised her eyes from the pavement in front of her and met the gaze of Kelley Delaine. Then she blushed and looked suddenly more girlish and shy than she had at any time in the months she had spent in Boston.

"I was hoping you would come," said the man. He held his hat in his hand and his handsome face was lighted by a smile of frank pleasure. "I played a long shot in coming here today, and now that I have won I am blissfully content."

Julia smiled happily and held out her hand to him. Surely just for these few minutes she might let herself be natural! There were so many hours when she must be practical and common-sensible and cautious that she might have this little respite from the dull round she had planned as her life in this great city.

"It's very pleasant to see you again, Mr. Delaine," she confessed. "To tell the truth, there are several things I want to speak to you about." She grew suddenly grave as the thought of Caryl, then continued, "But I really didn't expect you to be here——"

"Don't say the rest of it!" pleaded the man. "Let me fancy at any rate that you were thinking a little of the last talk we had here in the haven of down-and-outs. Now, if we can find a bench unoccupied by some free and independent voter of our great republic ahen't we sit down? We really can talk better if we are comfortably seated, you know?"

Girls! Beware of Men Who Are Married!

The Tragic Death of Hazel Herdman Preaches a Powerful Sermon on the Wickedness of Loving Another Woman's Husband

By DOROTHY DIX

I HOPE that every girl in the length and breadth of the land has been reading the sad and terrible story of Hazel Herdman, who murdered the wife of her lover and then took her own miserable life, because the wife would not get a divorce from her husband and leave him free to marry her.

The stark tragedy of such a story preaches a sermon more powerful than any printed or uttered words upon the wickedness and the folly of young women carrying on love affairs with married men.

Many girls indulge in these shady romances. Many girls are proud of their ability to attract married men, and boast of such conquests. Let them all be warned by the fate of this poor girl, for in some degree every one of them sooner or later will share in the agony she suffered, for while not every love affair with a married man ends in bloody murder, every one ends in a bleeding heart for the woman.

The girl who permits herself to be drawn into a love affair with a married man is not only a sinner, but she is a fool. She is playing a game in which the dice are loaded.

All the odds are against her. She is giving all, risking all, while the man risks nothing. He does not even take the chances of a bachelor on having to marry her if he compromises her or being sued for breach of promise if he is faithless. His marriage certificate protects him from the consequences of his wrongdoing and leaves the girl to bear the burden alone.

It is useless for her to claim that he is more guilty than she, because he has been a traitor to the wife that he had sworn at the altar to be true to, while she is free to give her love where she pleases. Society will draw its skirts away from the woman and sneer at her with scorn, while it digs the married Lothario in the ribs, winks at him and tells him that he's a very devil of a fellow among the girls.

The woman who chooses the primrose path takes enough risk, God knows, but she who elects to tread it with a married man is foredoomed to walk only upon thorns. She does not have even a sporting chance at happiness.

That a married man should be fascinating to an inexperienced and silly girl is not surprising. For one thing he represents to her the forbidden fruit, and the very knowledge that he belongs to another is a certain fillip to a flirtation with him. It fills her with a delicious sense of wickedness to have clandestine meetings with him and little dinners and suppers that are spiced by the thought of what would happen if his wife should suddenly walk into the restaurant.

Also, in many women, there is a streak of mischievous cruelty. It gives them pleasure to think of how they are torturing some fat and middle-aged wife with jealousy, and of how she is cutting down on the grocery bills to pay for the champagne they are wasting.

But the chief fascination of the married man is that he plays the game of love with the sure hand of a professional. The very fact that he is married has made him wise to the psychology of woman, and taught him a hundred little ways to touch a woman's imagination and emotion that the bachelor does not know. He plays with a girl's heart as a cat does with a mouse—and she has just as little chance of escaping as the mouse has, once she permits herself to get within his claws.

The great majority of married men who make love to girls are dastards, without one ray of conscience or honor. To amuse themselves they ruthlessly offer up a young woman on the altar of their pleasures; for they know, even if she does not, what a love affair with a married man means to a girl and the price she must pay.

She may be idiot enough to think that a girl can go automobiling with a married man, or be seen at the theatre with him, or out dining with him without comment being made upon it, other than as a kindly and friendly attention. But the man knows that even if she is as chaste as ice and pure as snow you could never convince a censorious and scandal-loving world of it.

Such a man will deliberately win a girl's heart for the sop to his vanity that it is, knowing that it can bring her nothing but misery. Then when anxiety and baffled desire have worn the freshness from her beauty and the gladness from her spirit he will cowardly take shelter behind his wedding ring and tell her that she has no right to reproach him, that she knew all the time that he was bound to another.

Sometimes a married man does fall honestly in love with a girl, but how selfish is the love that drags a woman into the slough of a hopeless entanglement! The man knows that he can make no return to the woman that he binds to him that will not compromise her.

He can only keep her from marrying and establishing a home of her own. He can only fill her heart so full of love for him that there is no place in it for another. He can only give her a love that is the most blighting curse on earth to her.

No happiness endures that is built on the misery of another. You cannot sin without paying the price! That is the moral that the story of Hazel Herdman teaches to every girl who is tempted along the devious path she trod.

"Under Cover" Teaches Moral

By REV. ALBERT E. GEORGE

THE melodrama "Under Cover" at the Plymouth Theatre, which has been delighting large audiences for some time, has an important lesson to convey. While it is charmingly mysterious, it also warns you against deception.

You may be able to put up a pretty big "bluff" for sometime and be able to get away with it. It may be some time before you are found out, but the discovery is sure to come.

When you see the first act of this play you have confidence that the man who is playing the part of the custom officer, Daniel Taylor, is all right. He seems to be so sincere. He talks like a man who is convincing. He never lets up with his zeal in threatening Miss Ethel Cartwright. "I am all right," he says, "I want to do what I say, there is harm coming to you." In this case you see a man keeping up a deception with a great amount of courage. He does it well. Then he turns out to be nothing more than a thief. That is the end of him in the play.

Now if there is anything that entitles this play to a hearing, outside of its mystery and its continued thrills, it is the fact that you are getting a lesson from it. Be careful of the individual who thinks every one is sinning but himself. That type of man will be eventually found out, as this play makes plain. You can't conceal your faults under another's sins and play the part of being righteous all the time.

It is a play with this teaching. While you are enjoying the glides, the drifts, the whirls and even the jolts of the smaller details of this play, which make it intensely interesting, don't forget the moral back of all this mystery.

If there is anything worth living for in life, it is sincerity. The man who means what he says, the man who can fill his position without being the grafter, the man who is not seeing misgivings in other people so exclusively to forget himself in the estimate, is the man who makes living worth while.

Go and see this play, not merely for the amusement which it will afford you but go and see how well it depicts the fellow who is playing double—that fellow that you have sometime or other mistrusted but never had enough evidence to convince you that something was wrong with his character. That's what this play, with many other excellent features, stands for.

It is well worth seeing several times to drive the truth home. Every one enjoys it who has seen it. They want to see it again. I've seen it twice. I liked it better the second time, because I saw more in it. I saw that it was teaching a great moral truth.

It is exceedingly well presented. It is a play with depth. You can't see the bottom of it, till the last act. It keeps you guessing.

So don't miss the play once only. Get acquainted with it. It will give you the wholesome impression that wrong doing is always uncovered.

When you get a play fixing that in your mind and fixing it in an interesting way, you'll want to carry out its teachings somewhere and somehow into life itself.
